HEADQUARTERS OF MAJ.-GEN. McCLELLAN.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 1.—First—Pursuant to General Orders No. 122, from the War Department, Adjutant-General's Office, of the 2d inst., the undersigned hereby assumes command of the fortifications of Washington and of all the troops for the defense of the Capital.

Second—The Heads of the Staff Departments of the Army of the Potomac will be in charge of their respective Departments at these Headquarters.

Third—In addition to the consolidated morning reports required by the circular of this date from these headquarters, reports will be made by corps commanders as to their compliance with the assignment to positions heretofore given them, stating definitely the ground occupied and covered by their command, and as to what progress has been made, in obedience to the orders already issued to place their commands in condition for immediate service.

(Official.) G. B. McCLELLAN,
Major-General.
E. WILLIAMS, Adjutant-General.

BY TELEGRAPH FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 5.

The following items are gathered from newspapers and private sources:

It is believed the rebels have crossed in some force this side of Point of Rocks, and subsequently for the most part removed into Virginia, as though hesitating to make the experiment of getting a lodgment in Maryland.

The rebels have thrown shells across the river at canal boats, &c., which, however, did no damage.

A man professing to have made his escape from the neighborhood of Leesburgh on Wednesday, by swimming the river, arrived within our lines to-day. He states that Jackson had entered Leesburgh with his troops, and was pushing toward Harper's Ferry; and Longstreet, with a considerable force, was marching in the same direction. The rebels are well supplied with artillery. Most of the Union people about Winchester and Leesburgh had made their escape into Maryland. Others were captured by their secession neighbors, while making the attempt, and thrown into prison. Upon receipt of the intelligence that Jackson was marching toward Leesburgh, rebel flags were displayed by many of the inhabitants, in token of their joy at his coming.

BY MAIL FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Sept. 4—Afternoon.

There is nothing new from the front to-day. Our troops are still occupied in getting into position, and have for the greater part resumed the precise localities held by them previous to their leaving for the Peninsula.

Quite a number of field officers are in the city to-day, including Maj.-Gens. Pope and SUMNER.

There are constant arrivals of troops, in regiments and in pieces.

Baggage wagons line the streets, on their way to supply our troops both on the Virginia and Maryland sides of the Potomac. This description of business has never been more lively than it is at the present time.

There seems to be no doubt that the Maryland side is now free from armed rebels.

Five rebel scouts or spies crossed over yesterday at Edwards' Ferry, and were seen at or near Poolesville. They did not long continue in that neighborhood. Such reconnoitrances are believed to be of frequent occurrence.

A regiment of rebel cavalry was at Edwards' Ferry yesterday, and amused themselves by saluting our men on this (the Maryland) side, with their field-pieces, doing no damage.

It is ascertained that the enemy's forces last seen at Manassas, were for the most part worn out or invalid soldiers, gathered there as a place of refuge.

The rebels in the recent engagements did not fight with their entire forces, having a powerful reserve to be made use of as the exigencies might require.

The most reliable among the conflicting rumors is that the rebel forces, comprising, at a guess, a hundred thousand men, were still moving yesterday through Thoroughfare Gap, branching off into the valley, and stretching upwards toward Harper's Ferry.

Paroled prisoners say that the rebel soldiers expressed their confidence of crossing over into Maryland in heavy force in the course of four days. They doubtless will make the attempt.

Gen. Sumner arrived here to-day. On his appearance at his hotel he was warmly welcomed by his friends.

Gen. Cuvier Grover is also here, and publicly denies the statement that Gen. Sumner lost any guns.

Senator Rousseau, who lost a son in the recent battles, is in the city.

Senator Wilmot is still here.

Other members of Congress, from different parts of the country, are among the many sojourners.

The clerks of the different Governmental Departments have commenced drilling.

Nowhere is the thought that "the pen" is not at this time "more powerful than the sword."

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Sept. 4—11 P. M.

The recent events in Virginia continue to form the topic of general conversation; military movements, and other conduct of the respective Generals, afford a prolific theme for both military and civil critics; almost every one can see how disasters might have been avoided, and victories secured,—but, unfortunately, the advice comes at too late a period to be effectual.

The quiet of the city still continues. No one seems bold enough to manufacture and circulate an exciting rumor, to disturb the general monotony.

There is no disagreement, whatever, in the belief that the rebels are extending their lines into the Valley of Virginia, having in view the crossing into Maryland to carry out their military programme.

It is not known that even a skirmish has yet taken place recently on the upper Potomac, but active movements are of course anticipated in that direction, as well as in the immediate country on the line of the Potomac River and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

In the absence of facts regarding rebel movements, much is necessarily left to conjecture. It is only necessary to say, in this connection, that our forces are watchful and vigilant.

In front of our army to-day, six or eight miles distant from our most advanced outposts, clouds of dust, and other appearances, clearly indicated activity among the rebel troops. This is the extent of the knowledge on that subject, apart from the report that our pickets were driven in this afternoon by a detachment of the enemy's cavalry and artillery. The count of cannon for a short period seems to confirm this rumor. Whatever may be the fact, no damage whatever has resulted.

It appears by a private letter, that our troops have been withdrawn from Aquia Creek, if not altogether, certainly in part. The military stores have been amply secured, and placed beyond the probability of falling into the hands of the enemy. Five or six gunboats were at the last accounts lying in that vicinity. The rebels do not occupy Fredericksburgh with any force. Six troops designed to hold the town have been sent forward to augment JACKSON's forces. The citizens are performing guard duty at Fredericksburgh.

A rebel prisoner now in this city and whose relatives reside here, represents that the slaughter of the enemy in the recent battles was extremely heavy, and estimates the number far greater than the exaggerated losses upon our side.

A rebel mail recently captured in the vicinity of Fredericksburgh, confirms the report of the enemy's heavy losses, especially among the officers, including Gen. EWELL.

THE NATIONAL CASUALTIES.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 5.

From careful calculations, it is believed that the entire number wounded in the late battles will not exceed 8,000; killed, 1,000, and 2,000 prisoners, principally picked up by the enemy while straggling, and who, with the exception of the officers, have been paroled.

FROM CENTREVILLE ON WEDNESDAY.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 5.

WM. EMERY, connected with the Quartermaster's Department, who went down with other clerks, to the aid of the wounded, and who left Centreville on Wednesday afternoon, says, that in conversing with the rebel soldiers, he found them, with one exception, (a Texan,) expressing a "wish that the war was over, and that they were back again under the dear old flag." With the officers, however, it was different.

On Tuesday Mr. EMERY saw a large rebel force going in the direction of Leesburgh. He learned that the enemy had a corps of unarmed men, whose duty it was to bear off their killed and wounded as fast as they should fall, or as soon as their removal could be effected.

THE FEELING IN BALTIMORE.

GILMOR HOUSE,
BALTIMORE, Thursday, Sept. 4, 1862.

Yesterday was, in its way, one of the most exciting days Baltimore has seen since the disturbance of the 19th of April, '61. No special manifestation revealed anything unusual in the condition of public feeling, yet it was evident, to any one familiar with Baltimore society, that the public mind was in a most feverish state. A variety of circumstances—some trifling, some important—having contributed to the disturbance of the city's equilibrium. The military movements in front of Washington were, of course, the primary cause of this, leaving the minds of all in a condition to be easily moved by incidents, which at other times would pass without notice. Thus the incendiary attempt to burn the Baltimore and Ohio depôt, was magnified into a plot to prevent the passage of troops to Washington; and facts of equal or less importance were caught at eagerly, as indicating far more than any legitimate interpretation could give them.

In anticipation of disturbance, many over-cautious people removed their plate and valuables to safes and other places of security, and otherwise prepared themselves to trust in Providence, in case of extremities. The rattling of cart-wheels filled some ears with the ominous sound of artillery, and enthusiastic Southerners, in their familiar intercourse, talked of the immediate appearance of their hero, JACKSON, in the streets of the monumental city. A gloom hung over everything and everybody, apparently, and tradesmen explained the meagreness of their stocks by the fact that they were buying no new goods, until matters took a different turn.

It is certainly a painful state to be kept halting between two opinions, as are some self-seekers who feel full assurance of the importance to their interests of loyalty, but are not wholly decided as to which side it is best to be loyal to.

Stonewall Jackson is not yet here, and if he were fortunate enough, and rash enough to make his way in this direction, it is questionable whether even his adherents would have unalloyed satisfaction in his approach. They are not altogether enthusiastic enough to delight in seeing the battle-field transferred to the still blooming fields of Maryland, and are making mental calculations among themselves as to how much would be left of Baltimore after the two armies had fought over it for possession.

The Union men here are naturally feeling a little blue at the recent result of our military strategy, and while they have no question, of course, that it has been all very brilliant, they are still just the least bit at a loss to know how it is that Stonewall JACKSON should be so near Maryland.

The Secessionists are quietly exultant, anxious to crow more loudly, but restraining voice, through wholesome recollections of the treatment they received in consequence of too noisy applause at the repulse of Gen. BANKS. They are ready to show their hand when the opportunity occurs, and are being closely watched by the authorities, the police passing about yesterday in citizen's dress, taking observations.

Speculation is rife as to where JACKSON is to appear next, and what programme he is likely to follow, no one seeming to have a definite opinion. If he enters Maryland, it is thought that he will receive large accessions to his force from the young men of the State—as many as 50,000 being promised him in this way. But the recruiting in this Border State for two armies has left no such surplus of eager fighters for either side.

We have the usual abundance of wild rumors, among which is the report that the rebels are pushing for Philadelphia to hold that city as a hostage for this town.

PIERREPONT.

A DISGRACEFUL SPECTACLE.

From the Tribune.

ALEXANDRIA, Wednesday, Sept. 3.

One of the most discouraging as well as disgusting features of the present condition of things is the bitter jealousies existing between many of the leading Generals. It is next to impossible to hear one General speak well of another. The old ideal of a soldier—that he was chivalrous, honorable and high-minded, and would rather lose his own life than weaken or destroy the well-earned reputation of another—seems to have passed from the minds of the general conception. A General now-a-days seems to be one who strives to win victories by destroying the reputation of his fellow officers, and to be constantly making efforts to demonstrate that if this or that man had acted differently, he himself would have long since crushed the rebellion. We have much too many Generals out of very common men. The cast that they are politicians amounts to nothing. I believe the best Generals we now have in our army were the most successful politicians in times of peace. West Point, certainly, has not effected much thus far, unless it is to spawn traitors. WASHBURNE and HAMMOND were soldiers, politicians, and statesmen. They were successful. I believe it is not in the order of Providence that West Point shall have the glory of saving the nation. She has had her hand in destroying it. Saving it devolves upon a nobler and a better class of men.

OUR ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

A Retrospective Glance at the Battles on the Rappahannock, Thoroughfare Gap, Bull Run—The Fight on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad—Our Losses—Citizens Captured—Scoundrels—A Splendid Charge—Modern Chivalry—Inscrutable Generalship.

FAIRFAX COURT-HOUSE, Va., Tuesday, Sept. 2, 1862.

A retrospective glance at the movements of the opposing forces during the last three weeks may be both interesting and instructive. After the battle of Cedar Mountain, the Union forces concentrated in the vicinity of Culpeper; the army advancing in superior numbers—Gen. POPE's army on Sunday evening, August 17, continuing the retrograde movement commenced at Cedar Mountain, and fall back to the Rappahannock River, where it arrived Wednesday, the 20th of August. In this movement the rear was protected by BUFORD's and BAYARD's Cavalry, who had a smart skirmish with the advance of the enemy on Tuesday, the 19th, when the latter were repulsed with heavy loss, and the rear-guard, under orders, fell back upon the main body, near Rappahannock Station, across the Rappahannock. On Thursday, Aug. 21, the enemy had stationed batteries along the river bank on our front for miles, and at an early hour attempted to discover the exact position of our forces, by opening an artillery fire along our whole front. This demonstration was promptly responded to, and the enemy's batteries were each in turn silenced, forcing them to be constantly changing their position. This artillery duel was kept up for three days—Thursday, Friday and Saturday—mixed up with occasional work by the infantry and cavalry on both sides, and was really the most magnificent artillery fight of the war. BAYARD's Cavalry repulsed a movement, then supposed to be an attempt to turn our left flank, but which subsequent events leads to the belief that it was intended only as a feint, to give them a better opportunity to operate on our right and centre, each of which were successively tried, but without gaining the desired object—a foothold upon the left bank of the river. During these three days there were several brilliant dashes made, principally by troops under the command of Gen. STUART. On Thursday, Gen. STUART crossed the river at a ford several miles above the railroad bridge, to reconnoitre. He returned to the left bank early in the evening, having had a brief skirmish with the enemy. At 4 o'clock the following morning he threw a force across the river and made a dash upon a rebel battery of eight pieces. He was repulsed, but promptly reformed, took the battery, but was not able to hold it, the enemy having received large reinforcements. The next day the enemy attempted to execute a similar movement. Gen. STUART permitted them to throw across two squadrons of cavalry and a battery, and as a brigade of infantry got fairly into the river, he opened a destructive fire upon them from three batteries, destroying and capturing nearly the whole force. A prisoner taken at the time, stated that he believed he was the only man of the infantry force who escaped with his life. The river, for a time, at this point, was filled with dead bodies, and the rebels were very cautious thereafter when they knew that STUART's command was in front of them. Sunday, the enemy succeeded in throwing a large force across the river above Warrenton or Sulphur Springs, near Amissville, and the bulk of this force passed up to Salem and was there joined by a force from Front Royal. All but LONGSTREET's and HILL's command got through Thoroughfare Gap on the Manassas Railroad. Our army was immediately thrown back, and on Thursday, the 28th August, RICKETT's command was at the easterly entrance of the Gap to dispute the passage of LONGSTREET and HILL's command, said to be 40,000 strong. Gen. POPE desired this force of the enemy to be kept back for five hours, when he would be prepared for them to step into a trap, said to have been laid for their benefit, but which miscarried, it is said, through the tardy movements of some General who failed to arrive with his command in time. The contest at this point for three hours, from 4 till 7 o'clock P. M., was a spirited one, and the loss of life on both sides was heavy. In this fight, THOMPSON's Battery, which took such a conspicuous part at Cedar Mountain, rendered efficient service, as also did the Fifth Maine Battery and the Eleventh Pennsylvania Volunteers. At other points during Thursday, portions of our force had contests with the enemy, and were everywhere victorious.

On Friday morning the two armies came together upon the old Bull Run battle-ground, and had a pitched battle which lasted all day. The Union forces occupied the battle-field at night. The contest was renewed the following day—Saturday—at an early hour, and the indications were, up to 4 o'clock, the Union troops would prove the victors. At the hour named, through some alleged mismanagement of Gen. McDOWELL, who had command of the left, the enemy succeeded in flanking us. Every officer with whom the writer has conversed, believes this could have easily been avoided, and many statements are made, not all creditable to the General who had command at this point. This flank movement rendered it necessary for our army to fall back to Centreville, which it did in good order—leaving the rebels in possession of the field. On Sunday morning the enemy attacked our left—a feint—but there was no general engagement during the day.

It is next to useless to estimate the loss in the battles of Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It was very heavy on both sides. A rebel officer acknowledged to the writer that they had 300 killed—a large loss for them to admit. They claim to have taken 1,400 prisoners, including 50 or 60 citizens, whose curiosity led them to the field "to see the rebel army whipped," as their captors believe. Our loss in killed and wounded will amount probably to 5,000, possibly more. The reports of 10,000 to 14,000 killed, wounded and missing, may be true, for it is estimated that not less than ten or twelve thousand stragglers passed down the railroad toward Alexandria, some under the pretence of finding their regiments; others going they knew not where nor cared so long as it was not toward the enemy. These stragglers were picked up in scores by the irregular cavalry, and go to swell their list of captures "taken the fortune of battle." On this particular subject I shall have something to say at another time.

Just before the left of our line gave away, Saturday afternoon, a redeeming feature of the fight took place. A rebel brigade opposite Gen. SYKES's Brigade, of Gen. REYNOLDS' command, made a charge. The movement was quickly discovered by the Commander of the Corps—Gen. FITZJOHN PORTER—who ordered the Second, Fifth and Sixth Pennsylvania Reserves to charge also. Between the contending forces and about midway there was a road several feet lower than the surrounding surface of the land. The first struggle was to obtain possession of that road, which the Union brigade succeeded in doing—repulsing the rebel brigade with terrible slaughter. While Maj. WARNER was waving the flag of the Sixth Regiment to rally the brigade after the disorganizing consequent upon the charge, a shot cut the staff in twain. Gen. REYNOLDS rode forward, seized the colors, rode up and down the line with them wrapped partially around his person, when "the boys" actually ceased firing, and gave their General three rousing cheers. Gen. REYNOLDS was so much pleased with the conduct of the brigade that he could only express his appreciation of their conduct by exclaiming "Bully for you, boys," at the same time throwing his cap high in the air. This elicited another burst of applause. The brigade immediately closed up in order, marched to the rear by the right of companies, and there reformed in line of battle with as much deliberation and coolness, amidst a shower of bullets, shot and shell, as if on parade in a green field of their own native State. These regiments belong to the McCALL corps, which has acted so noble a part whatever they have met the enemy. It was almost at the very moment succeeding this charge that McDOWELL's left gave way for want of sufficient support, which was close at hand. The cheers of the brigade were heard along the line towards the right where, very naturally, it was supposed that the left had gained some signal advantage, and the cheers were responded to along the whole line. Their joy was soon turned into grief, and their words were those of denunciation upon the man who is held responsible for the disaster of that day.

While the main army was moving forward from Warrenton to Bull Run, and subsequent thereto, there was some skirmishing going on at different points, which must be recorded. REYNOLDS' force had a brisk contest for an hour on Tuesday. HOOKER had the engagement at Chantilly, described in a previous letter, at Catlett's Station, on Wednesday. Gen. TAYLOR had the misfortune to join in the fight at Manassas Junction, which also was described in a previous letter. During the battle of Bull Run, Gen. BANKS, with his command, was covering the extreme left of our line, to keep off reinforcements for the enemy, and to be used as a reserve. He crossed to Bristoe's Station, and there, on Sunday, was approached by the rebel Generals LONGSTREET and HILL, backed up by a force treble his own. Gen. BANKS decided to fall back upon the main army, which movement he commenced to execute on Sunday afternoon, the 31st of August. At this point there were upon the road 230 cars and five locomotives—all of which were destroyed, together with a large quantity of fixed ammunition, ordnance stores, &c., belonging to Government, and this property was saved the previous week when the raid was made upon the railroad; and as the bridges had not been repaired at Bull Run and at several other points, the property could not be taken over the road to Alexandria. Everything, even the houses, (shanties,) were destroyed, so that when Gen. LONGSTREET reached the station, immediately after Gen. BANKS retired, he found nothing for him to steal. That evening a portion of LONGSTREET's Corps passed up to and beyond Manassas Junction on the railroad, and captured several hundred stragglers from regiments engaged on the battle-field.

During the cannon duel on the Rappahannock on Saturday—the last day—Col. FRIZZELL, of the Thirty-seventh New-York, had a very narrow escape from instant death. He had just dismounted from his horse, when a shell struck the pommel of the saddle, passed along and took off the head of a negro.

In the above battle the Second United States Sharpshooters were stationed along the bank of the river to plot off the rebel gunners, and had only two men killed and five wounded. At one point near Sulphur Springs they killed forty rebel sharpshooters and lost only one man. The rebel commander, finding that his sharpshooters were in a place from which any attempt to escape would be certain death, adopted the dishonorable ruse of sending in a flag of truce about some frivolous matter, which was not listened to by Gen. POPE, and under the cover of the flag the rebel sharpshooters—some 300 in number—escaped to a more healthy position. Such is chivalry.

On Friday, at Bull Run, JACKSON's Brigade of McCALL's Division, while marching into action, each brigade in column of regiment closed en masse, as ordered by Gen. McDOWELL—without any forewarning found themselves within one hundred and fifty yards of a battery, which made sad havoc in the ranks, in close order as they were. On the same day the Tenth Pennsylvania Regiment of this brigade got badly cut up by charging upon a battery when only ordered to skirmish in front. They were repulsed.

On Thursday the brigade of which the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Regiment forms a part, was engaged with the enemy, when he retreated up the Warrenton turnpike. The brigade was ordered to follow in pursuit at double quick for about two miles, when they were flanked, and a deadly fire was poured in, killing a large number. It was at this point the Brooklyn Fourteenth had so many men killed and wounded. This battery, which rendered such efficient service at Cedar Mountain, was equally efficient on the left of our line Saturday, but was finally overpowered by a superior force, and three of the four guns captured. When the horses had all been killed, and the enemy were advancing in one high mass to capture this battery and turn our left, the Captain put on the "prolonge," (ropes,) and kept up a constant fire as he fell back. The last discharge was when the enemy were within thirty yards, and the four pieces were discharged at about the same time. The enemy then pounced upon the men at the battery, and two had their skulls split up with sabres while defending their favorite pieces.

PACIFIC RAILROAD CONVENTION.

Proceedings in Chicago—Assembling of the Convention—Temporary Organization—Distinguished Present—The Permanent Organization—Address of Mr. Ogden, the President—H. V. Poor Chosen Secretary.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Tuesday, Sept 2, 1862.

For some days past, our city has been filled with distinguished strangers, who have been assembled hither by the Convention of the Board of Commissioners of the Pacific Railroad Company, named in the bill passed at the last session of Congress.

This Convention was justly regarded as one of the most important ever held in the country. For the West it has a special importance, and a paramount interest with all our citizens. As a National enterprise, it has had no peer since the era of railroad-making commenced.

Not only were nearly all the Commissioners named in the bill here by Monday night, but a large representation of the leading capitalists and railroad men of the North—telegraph men, bank men, and politicians. The Convention met in Bryan Hall, at 12 o'clock, and organized temporarily by calling Gen. Samuel R. Curtis, of Iowa, to the Chair. As he is just from the Arkansas campaign, Hon. C. was received, on taking the Chair, with an outburst of applause. This having ceased, he made a brief introductory address, setting forth the objects of the Convention, and then the importance of the enterprise they were about to inaugurate.

The Commissioners had been selected to put in practical form and actual operation an enterprise which had, more or less engaged the attention of the country for the last quarter of a century. Hitherto there had been put forth in connection with this road visionary ideas—large ideas, which were impracticable, and, consequently, never secured that confidence which is necessary to success. But now we have an act of incorporation, which has received the approbation of the most distinguished practical minds in the country. And we have now assembled to open the initiatory steps to adopt the measures and pursue the plans which are to give to our people a highway to the Pacific.

The distance between the connecting points at the Mississippi and Westward now has been reduced to 1600 or 1800 miles, requiring the construction of a less number of miles of railroad than were built in Illinois in two years.

To all who are interested in the great lines of railroad terminating at or beyond the Mississippi, he would say, you will find the branches proposed in the bill, embracing all your roads, bringing you directly upon the great trunk line. There are to be three or four of these branches, but they are in no way to interfere with the trunk, except to be feeders to it from the lines, which, having their starting point on the east-board, now reach nearly to the confines of the settled portion of the country, on the Western frontier.

Of the importance of this great national work, he scarcely need speak. It would connect the Pacific States with those of the great Valley, and of the Atlantic, forming the link which will make us emphatically one people.

The provisions of the bill under which we are about to act, have fortunately secured the coöperation of all the great railroad interests of the country. This is auspicious, and a guarantee of ultimate success.

Gen. C. briefly sketched the history of the past efforts to secure the construction of a Pacific railroad, and the principal causes of their failure.

In concluding he would say, that he wished no position in the organization. His duties called him elsewhere, and would engross all his energies until the rebellion is put down. All he wished, was a guarantee of success. Let the important posts be filled with men of purity of motive—national views and unity of action—such men as will commend the enterprise to the capital of the country. The bill was more liberal than the one he had introduced into Congress. It granted more land, more bonds. But after all, we must rely upon an honest and faithful administration of the trust, to insure the success of the enterprise. When completed, those who have been instrumental in carrying forward this great work to its final consummation, will merit and will receive a higher place in the niche of fame than any others on this continent. This time of disaster and difficulty may be deemed inauspicious to the entering upon and completion of this magnitude. But these difficulties do not interfere with its elements of success, or materially decrease its sources of income—the trade and travel of necessity will be compelled to take this route from ocean to ocean, and the intermediate and adjacent territory, which contains points.

Ransom Finney, of Pennsylvania, and Jesse R. Robinson, of California, were appointed temporary secretaries. The roll was called, and the following Commissioners answered to their names:

Maine—James Dunning, John M. Wood, Joseph Bates.

New-Hampshire—Joseph A. Gilmore.

Massachusetts—Edward B. Tinker.

Rhode Island—Chas. Fredick Fletcher.

Connecticut—Cornelius S. Bushnell.

New-Jersey—Ephraim Marsh, Charles M. Harker.

New-York—Royal Phelps, Wm. H. Ferry, Samuel R. Campbell, Alfred E. Tiffon, John S. Kennedy, H. Cauldy, Joseph Field, Benj. F. Camp, Orville W. Childs, D. N. Barney, S. DeWitt Bloodgood, Wm. H. Grant, Thos. W. Olcott, Samuel B. Ruggles, Jas. B. Milburn.

Pennsylvania—Joseph H. Scranton, Geo. W. Cass, Daniel J. Morell, Robert Finney, John A. Green, E. R. Myre.

Ohio—Amasa Stone, Wm. Dennison.

Indiana—Chas. Paine, Jonas Votaw, Jesse D. Williams, Isaac C. Elston.

Illinois—Wm. B. Ogden, Chas. G. Hammond, Henry Farnum.

Michigan—John D. Campbell, Chas. A. Trowbridge, Ransom Gardner, Chas. T. Gorham, Willard McCoume l.

Wisconsin—John Catlin, Levi Sterling, George Thompson, Ethan L. Phillips.

Minnesota—David Blakely.

Iowa—Wm. F. Coolbaugh, Lucius H. Langworthy, Hoyt Sherman, Lyman Cook, Samuel R. Curtis, Lewis A. Thomas, Platt Smith.

Missouri—William M. McPherson, Armstrong Beatty, John Corby.

Kansas—J. C. Stone, John Kerr, Werter R. Davis, Josiah Miller.

Nebraska—Gilbert C. Monell, Augustus Kountz, T. M. Marquette, Alvin Saunders.

Colorado—John Evans.

California—James T. Ryan, D. O. Mills, John B. Robinson.

Appointed by the Secretary of the Interior—Samuel J. Tilden, of New-York; H. V. Poor, of New-York; R. W. Latham, District of Columbia; O. M. Wozencraft, of California.

The absentees were then called, when, after some discussion, an adjournment took place to 5 o'clock, for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization.

Among the notables in attendance, are Gen. Curtis, Gen. Lane, Marshal Lamon, of Washington; Hon. Alfred Ely, Gen. Wetbridge, Hon. Samuel B. Ruggles, Hon. G. Vibbard, Gov. Dennison, of Ohio; Senator McDougal, of California; Gov. Fairbanks of Vermont, &c., &c.

CHICAGO, Tuesday, Sept. 2, 1862.

The Convention reassembled at 5 o'clock P. M. The motion for the election of permanent officers, which was pending at the close of the morning session, was taken up.

G. W. CASS, of Pennsylvania, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That this Convention do now proceed to a permanent organization, and that nominations be made for President.

This being amended so as to require a majority vote in order to elect, was, after some discussion, adopted.

Hon. Wm. B. OGDEN, of Chicago, and G. W. CASS, of Pennsylvania, were put in nomination for President.

Mr. CASS having peremptorily declined, Mr. OGDEN was chosen by acclamation.

Mr. CASS and Mr. McPHERSON, of Missouri, were appointed to conduct the President to the Chair. On taking his seat, Mr. OGDEN was greeted with hearty cheering, which having subsided, he proceeded to briefly address the Convention.

He acknowledged heartily the honor conferred in calling him to preside over the Convention which has met to consider one of the most momentous questions of this or any other age. He should endeavor to discharge the duties so as to bring about the results so important to the interests, permanence and union of our country.

The difficulties which surround the project are but temporary. It must be carried through by wise conservation and practicable courses of policy, which will inspire the confidence of the country. A speculative spirit [illegible] political union. [illegible] should be free from [illegible] in enemy to the project.

The bill is [illegible] well drawn, with a good foundation, but upon an investigation of details, it was evidently hastened, and some of the clauses which are not sufficiently well defined, will require to be changed. Congress will doubtless listen to experienced practical men, and make such amendments as this Convention shall recommend—and he would suggest and lay before the Convention some of the alterations which, in his judgment, ought to be made. This meeting should adopt these amendments, in order to make it a successful bill, and should sign a petition that we will take stock if they are adopted, if we go before Congress with two or three hundred prominent names, they will command attention.

He would suggest the following:

First—The bill gives no power to condemn property. It was the first conception that the road went through Government lands, which led to this omission. This should be remedied.

Second—There is no provision giving the right to mortgage the lands. You may wish to raise a few millions by mortgage, but there is no provision to that effect.

Third—There should be an amendment providing for a further extension of time in carrying out the details of the road.

Fourth—The twenty-five per cent. reservation on the bonds issued for the construction of the roads over the Plains, undoubtedly made for fear the money would be stolen, should be remedied by placing it in the hands of men of high character and then the reserved rights would be granted.

Fifth—It is a radical error in the bill that Government has reserved the right of giving preference to their business, telegraphic, postal, and the transportation of troops. Suppose we should be involved in a Continental war, and the road should be occupied for a year or two exclusively for war transportation, where is your money to pay employes, and to devote to repairs and other expenses? Government should either pay for this right, or else should be limited in the work it does. That provision should be reconsidered.

Sixth—The Government has the right to the proceeds of these bonds, due thirty years hence, after the principal and interest are paid. It is the public opinion that these bonds will pay in thirty years. If this road is put into that highly respectable relation it deserves, Congress will undoubtedly waive that claim. When we build roads in the West, we go to the East for customers, from whom we may raise money upon our first-mortgage bonds, which are first liens upon the property. Government in building this road for its own purposes, and asks us to add our money to that of the Government, to complete the road and run it for them. It is not the policy of Government to guarantee the stock of the road, but it is right and proper that when Government asks subscriptions for its own purposes, we should have seven per cent., and the balance go to Government. After the railroad is once started, forty or fifty millions more than Government allows, will be needed to keep it going. The work is not more than half done, when you see it running. After the details are worked out the earnings begin to come in. I asked Mr. THOMPSON, of the Pennsylvania Central road, why he built that immense hotel on the top of the Alleghanies. He replied that he was afraid that two or three trains might get stalled in the Winter, and the passengers starve or freeze. But not a single train had been stalled since the erection of his hotel. No doubt troubles and many obstacles will be found in the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra Nevada, but they can probably be overcome.

With the aid of this further contribution, and a perfect charter of this kind, with the allotment of seven per cent. of the earnings to the stockholders after Government has started the road, capitalists will be more than willing to take hold of it.

It seems to me that these amendments comprise the most essential points, and I think there is little doubt that when you act as a whole and suggest them to Congress, they will make still further provisions. So far as the National point of view is concerned, the States west of the mountains have made complaints of the Eastern States, for withholding their means and not making connection with them. I have feared this feeling might lead to an estrangement, almost fatal in its consequences. The indifference of the eastern side of the mountains, if continued, will cause them to take their fortunes into their own hands and leave us alone. This is a vital matter, and we must assure them that we will make them and ourselves immediate neighbors.

The importance of the road, when constructed, as the great highway of nations, as well as a connecting chain between the Atlantic and Pacific States, cannot be overestimated. Lines of steamships will be established in connection with it—traversing the Pacific Ocean in every direction, and making tributary to it the rich commerce of the far East. It will bring the Oriental ports within thirty days of New-York. The difference between this and a nine months' voyage around the Cape is apparent, at least to every merchant. Forty days will suffice for the transit from India to England. The route must command the travel and a large portion of the trade between Europe and the East. This will be in addition to the immense home business which, as a necessity, must be done upon this road.

The road will be without a competitor, with regular rates of tariff, and can easily earn enough to make the investment a profitable one. It can be easily built, and will cost much less than many Eastern roads, per mile. In the meantime, if we can procure these amendments with the promise of heavy subscriptions, the work, we may reasonably anticipate, will go forward.

The Convention will now proceed to business.

H. V. POOR, of the New-York Railroad Journal, was nominated for Secretary.

Mr. GILMORE made a motion to adjourn, to give those who were expected this evening an opportunity to participate in the organization.

B. F. CARP, of New-York, and JOHN R. ROBINSON, of California, were also nominated for Secretaries.

Mr. RYAN, of California, moved a reference of these nominations to a Committee.

He also suggested that Committees on Business and Resolutions should be appointed.

A long discussion ensued, of no public importance, which was participated in by several Commissioners. The motion to refer was then put and lost.

Mr. TILDEN, of New-York, moved that the Convention proceed to the election of Secretary—the vote to be taken, by calling the names of the Commissioners.

At this point Jefferson's Manual and several other things were discussed quite earnestly.

Gen. CURTIS made quite a long speech, mainly with reference to the amendments proposed by the President of the Convention in the opening address. He declared that there was no necessity of petitioning Congress for them. The Legislatures of the States would freely and promptly grant the right of way, Congress would grant an extension of the time for the completion of the road at any time for good reasons shown. Congress had made a most liberal grant, giving for the first 150, 6,400 acres of land, which at the lowest estimate is worth $4,000, and $12,000, making $16,000 for each mile of road. This he considered enough to begin with, and that it would be impolitic to ask more. He thought it the best policy to perfect the organization under the bill as it stands.

Several distinguished gentlemen present—not members of the Convention—were invited to a seat upon the platform. Among them was Gen. SCHENCK, just from Washington.

A viva voce vote was taken for Secretary, with the following result:

H. V. Poor	51
B. F. Camp	10
J. R. Robinson	6

The election of Mr. POOR was then declared unanimous.

THOS. W. OLCOTT, of Albany, was elected Treasurer "by acclamation."

On motion of Mr. BUSHNELL, a Business Committee, constituted as follows, was chosen:

Maine, John M. Wood; New-Hampshire, James A. Gilmore; Massachusetts, Edward B. Tinker; Rhode Island, C. F. Fletcher; Connecticut, C. S. Bushnell; New-Jersey, C. M. Harker; New-York, S. B. Ruggles; Pennsylvania, G. W. Cass; Ohio, Amasa Stone; Indiana, Samuel Hanna; Illinois, Wm. B. Ogden; Michigan, C. T. Gorham; Wisconsin, J. Catlin; Minnesota, D. Blakely; Iowa, W. F. Coolbaugh; Missouri, J. Corby; Kansas, J. C. Stone; Nebraska, Oliver Saunders; Colorado, John Evans; California, D. O. Mills; At Large, S. J. Tilden.

The Chairman extended an invitation to the members to attend the evening session of the Convention, and the Convention adjourned.

Report of the Business Committee—Speech of the Honorable Wealth of Colorado—Address of Mr. Evans—Remarks of Gen. Schenck and Mr. Bloodgood, of New-York.

CHICAGO, Thursday, Sept. 3.

The Convention reassembled at 10 o'clock this morning, and 60 Commissioners answered to their names. After some unimportant business, explanations, &c., the joint resolutions of the Territorial Legislature of Colorado, asking that the road may be located through that territory, pledging the earnest cooperation of the people in its construction, and recommending Gov. EVANS as one of the Directors, was received and laid over for future consideration.

The Business Committee reported, in part, setting forth the importance of the Pacific Railroad in a National and commercial point of view; that the pressure of war should not discourage the friends of the work, nor deter them from entering vigorously upon its prosecution. They also recommend the early opening of subscriptions in all the principal cities of the Union.

The report was accepted and laid over for future consideration.

After the transaction of some routine business, the report of the Committee was taken up.

Hon. S. S. RUSSELL, of New-York, called upon Gov. EVANS, of Colorado, for an exposition of the mineral resources of that region, and the effect of the Pacific Railroad in developing its resources, &c.

Gov. EVANS addressed the Convention at some length, in response to the call, setting forth most gratifying results of quartz mining at Pike's Peak and Gregory. The production of gold was much larger than he ever imagined, until recently. The Pacific Railroad should have the benefit of passing through this Territory. On this route there were miles where a spade need scarcely be struck, in order to form a road bed. The yield of gold at Central City will amount to $5,000,000 the present year. There have recently been made discoveries of valuable deposits of iron and coal on the line where the citizens of Colorado desire to have the road built—about the 40th parallel. Timber and water were abundant, and there was every needed facility for the construction of the road. Colorado would soon contain the requisite number of inhabitants to entitle it to become a State. Give us this road and you greatly facilitate its settlement, the development of its resources, and insure its immediate and permanent prosperity. In return, we shall give you material aid of no mean magnitude, and a large and profitable addition to your income. Some objections to this route are urged in California; but he was assured that a careful investigation of all the advantages and disadvantages would result in a decision in its favor.

Mr. RUSSELL made a brief but characteristic address, abounding in the logic of "facts and figures," for which he has so long been distinguished. He thought that the Government would make more money by running the road through the regions of the gold and silver mines, than would be expended in its construction. With this route once opened, the future magnificence of America would more than realize the poet's dream. The emigration to the now far West would be magical in its developing influence upon the now almost inaccessible regions of the country.

Mr. BLOODGOOD, of N. Y., followed in the same strain, advocating eloquently the importance of the road in a commercial point of view. As a commercial route it would have the advantage over all others. It would cause the commerce of the East to flow across the continent. It would bring the gold of California direct to New-York, instead of scattering it to all parts of the world. Mr. B. made some strong points, and was well fortified with statistics—so dear to practical men. But as these arguments have been urged through so many years, they become familiar, which renders unnecessary extended reports.

The first resolution of the Business Committee—setting forth the importance of the road—was adopted unanimously.

A communication was read from JAMES GARRETT, a banker, of New-York, proposing to become the depositary of the corporation.

Adjourned to 5 P. M.

THE LAST DAY'S SESSION.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

CHICAGO, Thursday, Sept. 4.

The Convention met at 11 o'clock. The resolutions from the Business Committee in regard to opening the books was taken up, and the discussion on it became general. After being amended it was adopted. Books are to be opened the 1st of November, at Portland, Concord, Rutland, Boston, Providence, Hartford, Albany, Buffalo, New-York, Trenton, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Wilmington, Baltimore, Washington, Columbus, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Wheeling, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Burlington, Dubuque, St. Paul, Leavenworth, Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake, Carson City, San Francisco and Portland, Oregon, and remain open at least two weeks.

A resolution was unanimously adopted that the Board of Commissioners hereby be instructed to petition Congress immediately upon assembling in December next, to amend the Pacific Railroad act so that it shall read the capital stock of said Company shall consist of a million of shares of $100 each, which shall be subscribed for and held in not more than two shares by any one person.

A dispatch from H. C. KINNEAL and DANIEL S. WELLS, of Salt Lake, was read, saying that telegraphic reports of the proceedings of the Railroad Convention were read with deep interest, and trusting that they would be located on the route, giving the greatest good to the greatest number, and that the work be speedily accomplished, and adds that Utah will doubtless, when an opportunity offers, add deeds to words in so great and useful an enterprise.

A Committee of five was appointed by the Chair to collect useful information in respect to contemplated routes and agricultural, mineral and topographical character of the regions traversed by such routes.

The proceedings of the Convention were ordered to be published in pamphlet form for a general distribution.

The Convention adjourned to meet at the call of the President and Secretary.

THE RIO GRANDE FRONTIER.

Experiences of a United States Consul—Activity of Trade—The Inexplicable Inactivity of the National Government.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

SIR: My attention is called (to-day,) to an article published in your paper, 1st inst., of news purporting to have been given by me, in which there appears some error. I therefore give you my own statement, with my views, for the general welfare of our country, relative to the frontier, (Texas and Mexico.) I arrived at my post, Monterey, June 1, with a letter to P. MIJAS, United States Consul at Monterey, to turn the property of the Consulate over to me. Mr. MIJAS denied being United States Consul, or agent of the United States in any manner. He had in his store a box of consulate goods left by Mr. WALKER, former United States Consul, sealed up for safe keeping. Mr. SMITH, United States Consul at Saltillo, (in the same State,) in a drunken frolic, with some Texan friends, had burned the United States flag of his Consulate.

The cause of this unwillingness to be United States Agents is easily solved. Monterey and Matamoras are the great marts for the Texas trade. Cotton was hauled from Texas to Monterey, at the rate of 2,000 bales per month; from there to all the factories of Mexico. The teams return loaded with goods—much of the proceeds in powder, lead, saltpetre and sulphur. Many tons of the materials for making powder are hauled to San Antonio, where are two powder mills in successful operation. There had been no United States Consul, for many months, at Monterey or Saltillo, the necessity of which cannot be realized unless one has a full knowledge of the country and the mineral exports. I could write a book upon the necessity of the United States occupying the Rio Grande, Forts Brown and Ringold. Two months since, by some cause, Rumor said the United States troops were coming, and the large guns were all moved off to the interior. I think no resistance would have been made; in fact, the Union people would have taken those forts, if they could have had guns, &c. The Western Texans are largely Union.

The Mexicans are for the United States, decidedly. The foreign merchants are for the trade, and the [illegible] to the protection of their Government. When Capt. HUNTER, United States steamer Montgomery, lay at the mouth of the Rio Grande, it was a check to the Texans not to commit depredations on the Mexican side. The Texans evidently own the steamers and lighters on the river, but pretendedly owned at Matamoras, Mexico. Capt. HUNTER has saved the lives of our citizens who have been incarcerated by Texans on the Mexican side, his threat to seize their boats if given up, &c., caused their release. The Montgomery left June 26, since which time no blockading vessel has been at the mouth of the Rio Grande. L. FRANCK, Jr., United States Consul at Matamoras, through Capt. HUNTER, sent North nearly 150 Union refugees; he has now on his hands many; he is feeding some women and children, husbands hung or imprisoned. Some United States soldiers, been prisoners till May last, when they deserted from Camp Verde, after great persuasion to me at Monterey. Their situation was distressing. They have more than a year's pay due them. I clothed and fed them till I left, and turned them over to Mr. FRANCK, United States Consul at Matamoras, to get to a blockading vessel. They are very anxious to get to their regiment.

I wish to give the names of three non-commissioned officers, and hope the President and Secretary of War, if they shall find their ability and fidelity as apparent, that they receive commissions in the army. They allege they have refused to the Confederate officers to accept (all arrears to be paid up) to receive commissions as lieutenants, a sword, a good horse, also $100 bounty if they would enlist. Their names are as follows:

Sergt. Charles Riley, (Boston) 1st Art., U. S. A.
Sergt. Julius Rustenkin, Co. H, 6th U. S. Infantry.
Corp. Geo. Lingenfelser, Co. H, 8th U. S. Inf.

I left Mexico Aug. 2, on the British schooner Norris. Arrived in Washington, D. C., Aug. 28. The conditions of things are such at present that little attention or thought could be had from the heads of the Department.

Mr. FRANCK or myself could get no mails after the blockading vessels left. No dispatch from us has been received by the Secretary of State since June 1, and none from him to us since April last. Gen. CARNEY, of New-Mexico, had confidentially used up SHAFER's forces that were sent against him. But he is in a bad situation for provisions—the prisoners he captured he had to parole; he took from them the United States arms but returned some of their own to enable them to march through the hostile Indians. Above one-third of their numbers got back. Gen. JACK HAMILTON, with fifteen Union patriots, I left at Matamoras. He is en route for Washington. The Unionmen of Texas look to him for deliverance. As he is an Ex-Member of Congress, I hope he will be honored kindly instead of Judge DAVIS and Gen. HANEE. I met at Matamoras, in May last; they came to Washington with full hearts—had left family, business and property for principle. They are true men. They inform me they waited for three weeks for an interview with their President; this was cutting to them. I know the pears upon Mr. LINCOLN; but if he could have known their hearts, and the high position they stepped from, their familiar insulted, behind, is it kind to keep such patriots waiting for three weeks daily at the door?

The writer knows the feeling of these men by like usage. For six weeks did I wait for an interview last Fall, after being driven from my home in Florida, where I had resided thirty-two years—left property, family and business; came to my rulers with a full heart; felt I could be useful; was promptly indorsed (fully) by H. HAMLIN, Vice-President, and others; yet three months did I wait at Washington for one word. The President is kind and honest to all, but he is prayed upon by vultures, who crowd away true friends. I was given the Consulship of Monterey—the first American born citizen ever in that office. It is one of much care and usefulness to our Government, and I ask that our Government keep it up and support it. I have spent my time, $500 in money, and received not one dollar for it. It is an office with only fees for pay—the rebellion destroys them; yet the duties to the Government are of vast importance.

I have been compelled to resign and get North while my money lasted.

I know Mr. FRANCK, our valuable Consul at Matamoras, will be compelled to resign, unless soon aided by his Government. He has a salary of $1,000 per annum, but pays all out for the suffering, and is in debt.

If nothing more can be done, let me urge a blockading vessel be placed at the mouth of the Rio Grande forthwith. Through her Mr. FRANCK can get his mail and make known the wants and necessities of that section.

C. R. W. BLOOD,
Late U. S. Consul, Monterey.

Telegrams for the European Market—A Note from Mr. George Stoker.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In the commercial column of your issue of to-day you have alluded to me, by name, in a manner which indicates that you will await a reply.

You say: "We do not know who their agent or correspondent (of REUTER) is, but if it be Mr. GEORGE H. STOKER, who has an office adjoining the Associated Press Rooms, * * * we should like to advertise the fact."

I assure you, Sir, that I have no connection whatever with Mr. REUTER, of the London Press, nor have I anything to do with any newspaper, either on this side of the Atlantic or the other.

Mr. REUTER has his own agent in this City, who attends exclusively to his business, and, as I understand, to no other, and who, I have reason to know, relies wholly upon the New-York Press, and the telegraphic news arrangements of the Associated Press, for the intelligence that he communicates to Mr. REUTER.

My business is simply that of a commercial agent, sending and receiving telegraphic dispatches to and from Europe, of purely a commercial character, and attending to such other business as would naturally flow to a commercial agency.

Nor have I any connection with the telegraph, saving what would naturally arise from the nature of my business, or with the Associated Press, with both of which concerns your paragraph would, by implication, connect me.

I trust, Sir, you will do me the justice to publish this communication. Very respectfully,

GEORGE STOKER.

NEW-YORK, No. 145 Broadway, Sept. 5, 1862.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE SICK AND WOUNDED.

of enforcement doubtful. The county detectives had [illegible] the arrestings officers with the [illegible] making effort for enlisting the money [illegible] to his district, but meet a warning to [illegible] and no evidence of further corruption has been in light. The Executive Police (whatever [illegible] may be to inflict the conscience) and [illegible] efforts have been made to deceive them in the way of names, ages and addresses) are a faithful, organized body of men, and have performed good service. The force of clerks employed by Gen. Anderson number about 80. Some thought was entertained of getting on an extra night relay of 20, but it was found that progress was little expected by the results of this nocturnal pressure. Well regulated day work is more reliable and effective. Yesterday, Bedloe's Island was visited by the enrolling officers. To-day, Wallabout will be canvassed. It is intended to take the names of resident persons in that locality to compare with the Tax Book of clerks, bookkeepers and others, by a searching and a comparison limit between the names and addresses given from the books of business and Directories in the parts of this City and Brooklyn where they live. This is one of the many checks against fraud which the cowardly or unpatriotic will find it hard to get over. How many one may escape all the cunning devices applied to prevent the evasion of his duty to his country of every able-bodied man, would seem a mystery. As an instance of how perfect are the [illegible] and how wide-spread the ramifications, of the great enrollment net that Gen. Anderson has cast over the community, may be mentioned the statement of a well known citizen, who says he has a store down town, not very far from the Post-office, a store in one street up town, a wholesale factory up town, in another street, and a private residence up town in still a third street. Every one of these places is in a different district; and yet in each district his name has been obtained with full and correct details, concerning him to the resident assessor, which, I ask here and there will slip through the net no doubt, but, in face of all the precautions, not very many.

PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES.

The new bounty of $50, for which the Common Council of the City has made no munificent an appropriation, is now being paid by the Comptroller immediately upon demand. Quite a number of volunteers were yesterday presented to him at his office as proper recipients of the Municipal premium, and their certificates were honored on the spot accordingly. This City bounty and the certainty of getting it directly on enlisting have increased the readiness to volunteer amazingly. To-day is the last on which any recruit will be entitled to the State bounty of $50. This bounty has within the week been disbursed to several of the new regiments. Col. Bliss paid it to the One Hundred and Twenty-seventh (Col. Guardt's "Monitors") yesterday; to the One Hundred and Nineteenth (Col. Pinnance's Fifth Senatorial District Regiment) on Thursday, and he will attend to the First Regiment of the Metropolitan Brigade to-day. The men of these regiments have had to wait longer for their money than was expected, but Col. Bliss has been too busy with regiments ready to march to attend to it. Gen. Cole and Capt. Lazear continue to pay the United States bounties of $25 and $4 to recruits for regiments in the field.

DISCHARGE OF ENLISTMENTS—UNITED STATES MEN.

TEMPTING OFFERS.

Yesterday was one of the best days that recruiting and mustering offices have seen for some time. The combination of the City bounty of $50, added to the State bounty of $50, were sufficient to bring to the tents in the Park and the headquarters and stations all over the City a great number of men, when the certainty of receiving $100—half of it immediately—induced them to leaving their families, which they know were then comfortably provided for. The new regiments thus received extensive accessions. Regiments in the field, recruits for which receive yet the $50 bounty, are numerous, and, beautiful, keeping occupied the time of Mr. Hoyt, Dr. Tenney, Capt. Lazear, Lieut. Kingsbury and Capt. Cass. Several hundred was the aggregate total of the day's enrollment.

RECRUITS FORWARDED TO FILL UP REGIMENTS IN THE FIELD.

The transportation department of the Quartermaster's office has, during the month beginning Aug. 1 and ending 31 of September, forwarded to regiments in the field 5,572 recruits and 41 soldiers who were here on furlough, besides sending 53 paroled men to camps of instruction. Men on sick leave and in hospitals obtain their transportation through Gen. Harvey Brown, who has exclusive charge of the inland department. There has been a good deal of special transportation besides, much of which was for hospital service. Brig.-Gen. Swayne, late of Cairo, Ill., has been appointed by the Secretary of War to superintend the forwarding of recruits from this City.

INTERMENTS OF SOLDIERS.

The following is a list of soldiers buried in Cypress Hills Cemetery during the week ending Aug. 29:

Frooney, 26 Mich.; Wm. G. S. Skelly, 67th Ohio; John Gallile, 1st Penn. Artillery; Johnson Harman, Co. I, 93d Penn.; Henry Blunt; Terrence Roddy, Co. D, 2d Vt.; Quincy F. Burston; Patrick Waters; Jas. M. Wilson, Co. C, 5th Ill. Cavalry; Wm. Morris, Co. H, 2d Ohio; Lawrence Wrankle, Co. G, 10th N. Y.; Sherman H. Warner; John Murphy, Co. E, 61st N. Y.; Charles Harkens, Sergeant; S. H. Lyman, Co. H, 2d N. Y.; John A. Zigler; G. W. Rouse, Co. C, 3d Penn.; Andrew J. Robert, Co. G, 42d Ohio; Martin L. Brown, Co. F, 5th Harrison, Co. E, 69th N. Y. S. V.; W. Bates, Co. D, 11th Maine.

MEETING OF FRUIT MERCHANTS.

A meeting of importers and jobbers in the fruit trade was held Sept. 5, 1862, at the store of Minturn & Parsons, No. 115 Pearl-street, Hanover-square, to raise a company of volunteers for the war. It was organized by the election of Horatio A. Bliss as Chairman, James Robinson as Treasurer, and Mr. Brannigan Secretary. The Chairman, in taking his place, said this meeting was called at almost an hour's notice, for action, and not for speaking, and that in his opinion resolutions were not necessary, when it was the resolve of everyone present to do all in his power to put down this rebellion. To do this, recruits were wanted, and to raise recruits it was necessary to raise money to aid the men and their families. The fruit trade proposes to raise a company of young men, of good moral habits, for the war, and an opportunity was now offered for such as could not go themselves to assist those who would go.

Mr. James Robinson offered $50 for the first recruit, who soon presented himself and enrolled his name, William Brannigan, of 120 Concord-street, Brooklyn. An Executive Committee of ten was then appointed to act in behalf of the trade and report how much bounty would be paid to each recruit in addition to the City and State bounties. After short speeches from Messrs. Millar, Wiley, Hawkes, Wyckoff and others, the meeting was adjourned at 3½ P.M. to meet again on Friday. It is understood that this Company will be called the "Partridge Guard," in remembrance of Capt. W. T. Partridge, N. Y. Fifth Volunteers (Duryee Zouaves) who was killed while gallantly leading his Company at the battle of Gaine's Hill, June 27, 1862. A competent Captain, who has been under fire, will be selected, and the Committee will be pleased to hear of such an one at No. 115 Pearl-street, the present headquarters of the Partridge Guard.

The following amounts were announced as received:

Thomas E. Minturn	$100	James Robinson & Co.	$100
J. G. Allen & Co.	100	Place & Young	100
J. O. Ward & Co.	100	Johnson & Bates	100
Chatham, Phelps & Co	200	Parsons, Lockwood & Co	100
E. R. Conn	50	Miller & Gaither	50
A. B. Westervelt	50	Frazier & Van Saun	25
Paddock & Fowler	25	D. S. Anderson	25
Schult, Wiley & Wicks	25	Hackett & McLelland	25
Williams & Dean	25	Pease & Talmagin	10
Charles Parsons	10

Total $1,220, and more will be raised as fast as it is wanted.

THE IRONSIDES REGIMENT.

The authorization of this regiment is the last one to be granted by the Commander-in-Chief under the late regulation. Its acceptance is mainly due to the exertions of ex-Senator Maxwell, Chairman of the Young Men's Christian Association, who has taken a lively interest in this patriotic work from the beginning. Mr. Maxwell still acts as Chairman of the Committee in connection with many leading citizens, Clergymen and laymen. Gov. Morgan warmly approves of the proposed character and purpose of the regiment, and authorizes everything needful for its rapid completion and mustering.

ARRESTED FOR DISCOURAGING ENLISTMENTS.

Peter Hance, a resident of Austerlitz, Columbia County, has been arrested on a charge of discouraging enlistments, and is held in custody by the United States Marshal, awaiting orders from the Judge-Advocate-General.

DEPARTURE OF TROOPS TO-DAY.

To-day, the "Monitors," the One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Regiment from Hudson, the Fifth [illegible] Regiment, and perhaps others, will take their departure. To-morrow the Tenth Vermont Regiment is expected here, and on Monday the Eleventh from the same State.

DONATION TO CORCORAN'S IRISH LEGION.

Mr. James W. Beekman, of No. 5 East Thirty-fourth-street, has generously donated $100 to Corcoran's Irish Legion, to be given in sums of $10 to ten recruits who will join the "Judge Daly Guard," Capt. John J. Dwyer's Company, Second Regiment of the Brigade, Col. McDermott. The recruiting tent is in the Park, near the Washington statue, and recruits can obtain the $10 by applying to Mr. Charles Walters, No. 840 Broadway, with certificate of muster.

THE STANTON LEGION.

The First Regiment of the Stanton Legion, Col. W. H. Allen being now complete, is ordered to depart for the seat of war to-morrow (Sunday.) In consequence of this order, no passes to leave camp will on any account be granted to any of the men; but a limited leave to bid farewell to their friends in the regiment, may visit the camp to-day and to-morrow. The Staten Island ferry-boats, leaving hourly the foot of Whitehall-street, will be used, with Indian running gear, for the conveyance of the regiment to the seat of war. The departure of the regiment will be announced in the morning papers of Monday. Under the Stanton Legion, the formation of the regiment and its departure will advance rapidly.

RETURN OF THE THIRTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT N. Y. S. M. TO THE WAR.

The Thirty-seventh Regiment New-York State Militia, Col. Rosser, which has just returned from three months' service, is about reorganizing to serve for the war. Nearly all the officers and two-thirds of the men will remain in the organization, which, when completed, will be attached to the Metropolitan Brigade.

THE PATRIOTIC MERCHANTS OF CORTLANDT-STREET.

This afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the patriotic merchants of Cortlandt-street, will hold a meeting between Broadway and Greenwich-street, for the purpose of taking steps to organize a military company, and to induce the merchants of Cortlandt-street to drill—also permit their clerks at least one hour a day.

Funeral of Maj.-Gen. Kearney.

MILITARY ORDERS AND CIVIC PROCEEDINGS.

The funeral of the late Maj.-Gen. Kearney, U. S. V., takes place to-day. His remains were received from the field, embalmed and taken to East Newark, where his family reside. Until 1 P.M. the body will lie in state at the residence, during which time such of the public as desire to honor his memory or gratify their curiosity, can, without intrusion, call at the house.

In procession the body will then be brought to this city under a guard of honor, and will be taken to Trinity Church, where appropriate services will be performed. There will be a full choral service at the church, and an address from the Rector, in addition to the usual funeral ceremonies.

It is calculated that the procession will move from Jersey City, at 3½ o'clock P. M., and will be met in this City by a detachment of troops from Governor's Island, the Fifth and Eighth Regiments, N. Y. S. M., under command of Gen. Hall. Orders had been issued directing the Seventh, but as we go to press we receive the following notice from Col. Lefferts:

Seventh Regiment, Sept. 5, 1862.

The order for parade to-morrow, as escort to the remains of Major-Gen. Kearney, is hereby countermanded—arrangements having already been made by Major-Gen. Sandford.

MARSHALL LEFFERTS,
Colonel Commanding Seventh Regiment.

The following are the orders of Gens. Sandford and Hall, concerning the day's duty:

Headquarters First Division N. Y. N. G.,
New-York, Sept. 5, 1862.

Special Orders No. 2.—The remains of the late gallant and loved Major-Gen. Philip Kearney, who fell whilst in command of his division at the battle of Chantilly, will be interred in Trinity Church yard to-morrow afternoon, the 6th inst.

The Fifth Regiment, Col. Burnsa, and the Eighth Regiment, Col. Varian, will parade as a funeral escort, under the command of Brig.-Gen. Hall, and will meet the procession at the Jersey City Ferry, foot of Cortlandt-street, at 3½ o'clock P. M., and proceed from thence with the remains to the Trinity Churchyard. The brigade line will be formed in Broome-street, right on Broadway, at 1½ o'clock P. M.

The officers of the Division not on duty are invited to assemble in full uniform, with the usual badges of mourning, at the City-Hall, at 2 o'clock P. M., to unite with the procession.

By order of Maj.-Gen. SANDFORD.
W. E. Townsend, A. D. C.

In compliance with the above Division Order, Brigade line will be formed in Broome-street, right on Broadway, at 2 o'clock P. M., in full military undress.

By order of Brig.-Gen. HALL.
Thos. W. Pearsall, Jr., A. D. C.

The regimental orders from Cols. Burnsa and Varian are also published, and there is every reason to believe that there will be a full representation in the ranks of the members of these gallant regiments.

A Charitable Endeavor.

Mr. John W. Farmer, whose practical philanthropy has endeared him to many an aching heart, has issued an "appeal to philanthropists," in which he urges the necessity of a large lodging house which can accommodate from 500 to 1,000 poor, bedless and homeless people, of whom samples are frequently seen by every walker in the street. He proposes to build, at an expense of $20,000, an appropriate structure 25 feet wide, 40 in depth and 3 stories high. The stories will be divided as follows:

First story—Will be rented for business purposes, in which a bakery will be established, to give cheap bread to the poor, in hard times. Second story—Reading room and library for the use of the public. Third story—A free lecture and concert room, &c., &c. Fourth story—Cooking room, &c., &c. Fifth story—For bathing purposes, wash room, &c., &c. Sixth, seventh and eighth stories—To contain beds to hold 400 persons.

In closing, Mr. Farmer approaches the philanthropists, and says:

"I will furnish the house, give good nourishment, as I have done heretofore to all in times of cold and privation, and also good nourishing food and other comforts to the sick poor, at all times, such as fruit, wine, &c., no matter how many may call, that I am convinced require aid. I will also have attached to the building a register of all persons requiring help; also those who be want employment. The lot I propose to establish this building on is at No. 302 Broome-street, which I freely give; the building to be style "Friendship Hall, dedicated to God and my country." I estimate the building, &c., at $20,000. This sum I cannot afford to lay out at present, but as the object is a truly benevolent enterprise, in which I have already spent many thousands and am willing to spend as many more, I expect I will have no difficulty in raising the sum of $20,000 by loan, from the wealthy philanthropists of our City, payable in 20 years, without interest, secured by bond and mortgage on unincumbered real estate, with guarantees that the building will be erected as I propose, and its objects carried out to the letter, under my own supervision."

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Managers was held at the Bible House, Astor-place, on Thursday the 4th inst., at 3½ P. M., Francis Hall, Esq., in the Chair, assisted by Wm. B. Crosby, Esq., Vice-President.

The death of Rev. Dr. John C. Brigham, late Senior Secretary of this Society, and that of Hon. E. A. Newton, one of the Vice Presidents, having been announced, Rev. Dr. Taylor was called on to read the 90th Psalm and offer prayer.

Grants of books were made to the American Missionary Society for Colored Persons, at Fortress Monroe; 3,000 Testaments for volunteers in Wisconsin; 1,580, in English and German, for soldiers and prisoners of war in Ohio; 2,000 for soldiers in Kentucky. Bibles and Testaments for hospitals on David's Island; also to the General Hospital at Harper's Ferry, and several others of smaller amount; with $400 in funds to the American and Foreign Christian Union, for their Bible work in Italy.

Resolutions were adopted in regard to the decease of Rev. Dr. Brigham, and some appropriate and touching remarks made; and a committee was appointed to draft resolutions in regard to the death of Hon. E. A. Newton.

Mayor's Office.

Mayor Opdyke yesterday received the following dispatch, which will somewhat restrain the ardor with which hundreds of our patriotic surgeons and physicians have continued to volunteer their services at the seat of war and Government:

Washington, Sept. 5, 1862.

Hon. Geo. Opdyke, Mayor:

The call for volunteer surgeons has ceased. Capitol Hospital and many others temporarily closed. The Government assumes all the expenses of your corps. Fifteen of them yet at battle-field.

The National Pot Pourri.

The Warren-street Burglary—Recovery of $7,000 Worth of Silks, and Arrest of the Burglar.—Detective Farley yesterday succeeded in recovering about $7,000 worth of goods, consisting principally of silks, stolen from the store of E. H. Arnold & Co., No. 81 Warren-street, on Sunday last. In the Times of Tuesday we gave a detailed account of the manner in which this remarkable burglary was committed. The firm of Arnold & Co., immediately after ascertaining the extent of their loss, offered a reward of $200 for the recovery of the goods and the arrest of the robber. The detectives were soon upon the track, but they found much difficulty in working up the case, and it was not until yesterday that Mr. Farley succeeded in the task he had in hand. The offender gave his name as John Hermann, a native of Pennsylvania. He was found at No. 159 Madison-street. At the time of his arrest, he was engaged in packing the stolen silks in trunks and carpet-bags, and had them nearly ready for transportation to another place. The prisoner and his booty were all conveyed to Police Headquarters, and those entitled thereto claiming, prisoner will be committed to the Tombs, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Suicides with a Razor.—An oyster dealer, named Gerrit Greenfield, committed suicide at his residence, No. 126 Suffolk-street, by cutting his throat with a razor. The deceased had been ill for some time past with a fever, and at times he was very much deranged. Yesterday he sent his wife down stairs, and in her absence he seized a razor and drew it across his throat several times. Upon her return she found him breathing his last. Coroner Collin held an inquest upon the body, and the Jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts. The deceased was 30 years of age, and a native of New-York.

The New Deputy Collector.—To the place rendered vacant by the death of Hon. Michael Hoffman, the President has appointed Hon. Benj. F. Manierre, formerly President of the Rocky Mountain Club, of Brooklyn, but at present a resident of this City. Mr. Manierre, is a lawyer of ability, a politician of influence, a citizen of public spirit and an honest man. His appointment does credit to the judgment of Mr. Lincoln, gratifies a host of voters and insures the absolutely faithful discharge of the public duty assigned to the important department of which Mr. Manierre has charge.

Caledonian Excursion.—The New-York Caledonian Club propose for themselves and friends a grand pic-nic at and excursion to Jones' Wood on Wednesday next. That they will have a jolly good time we have no doubt, and the several chieftains of the Club are now securing the Metropolis for viands rare and delicacies ostly with which to furnish the tables.

A Case of Sudden Death.—An unknown man was found lying dead on the Albany steamboat dock yesterday. The deceased was a passenger on the steamboat Isaac Newton from Albany, and died very suddenly just as he was leaving the boat. On his person there was found $16 in money, and some letters addressed to James Horton, No. 6 City Hall-place. The Coroner was notified.

General Sessions.—In the General Sessions yesterday, Maria Leuzzer pleaded guilty to an indictment for grand larceny, in stealing a gold hunting-watch valued at $60, and a chain valued at $20, from one Conrad Meiser, at No. 115 Canal-street. The prisoner was remanded for sentence.

Drowned.—James Quillan was accidentally drowned yesterday by falling from the pier at the foot of Houston-street, North River.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

Brooklyn Military Matters.—The Fourth Metropolitan Regiment yesterday enlisted forty-three men. The three companies designed to the Western District are now nearly full. The Eastern District companies are also nearly completed. The regiment, it is expected, will be full in ten days from this time.

The following order was issued by Col. Cozzens, of the Second Senatorial Regiment, yesterday:

"The officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of this regiment, will report at Camp Arthur on Saturday, 6th inst., at 10 o'clock, A. M. All persons who neglect to attend to the order will be treated as deserters, and punished as such."

ANTHONY COMB, Colonel Commanding.
Jesse H. Sylvis, Adjutant.

The regiment is under orders to march.

The wounded soldiers in the Long Island College Hospital have passed resolutions of thanks to the ladies and citizens of Brooklyn, for their kindness in supplying them with delicacies, and for their attention.

The members of Cashaw Hose Company No. 12 presented their late associate, John O'Connor, Captain of Company G, First Regiment, Empire Brigade, with a sword, sash and belt, on Thursday night last. Adjutant Hanley made the presentation on behalf of the Company.

The Fifty-second Regiment, State Militia, have offered their services to the Governor for nine months.

The Committee of the Board of Supervisors have paid the county bounty of $100 to about 500 men since Thursday morning.

Delegates to the Democratic State Convention.—The regular Union Democrats of King's County have selected the following Delegates to the Democratic State Convention: First District—Andrew A. Myers, delegate; Andrew J. Dick, alternate. Second District—Mathew Murphy, delegate; no alternate.—Fourth District—Henry C. Murphy, delegate; James Darcey, alternate. Seventh District—Thomas C. Godwin, delegate. The latter delegate was instructed to vote for Horatio Seymour for Governor. The National Democrats will select delegates from the Third, Fifth and Sixth Districts, in accordance with the terms of agreement between the two General Committees.

Death in Camp.—A soldier named Nelson Baldwin, belonging to Col. Cozzens's Regiment, died suddenly in his tent on Thursday night of fever, to which he had been subject. Deceased was about 40 years of age. His only son is in the Brooklyn Fourteenth Regiment. An inquest was held by Coroner Huedman, and a verdict in accordance with the facts was rendered.

LAW REPORTS.

Supreme Court—Chambers.

Before Hon. Judge Leonard.

In re Emily Megrath.—In this case, as it appears from the papers, the parties had, after threats of divorce, on one side or both, signed a deed of separation, in which, among other things, the husband stipulated that the child, Emily, should remain under the charge of her mother. Subsequently, however, Mr. Megrath was led to believe that his wife had formed, and was maintaining, a guilty intercourse with Dr. Malcolin Ives, who at one time officiated in Milwaukee, as a Roman Catholic Priest, and has since been well known in this city as a contributor to the Press, and as a State prisoner in Fort Henry. Under the impression, however, that, in contravention of the terms of the deed, the wife was not only receiving improper attentions from Dr. Ives, but that the endeavor was being insidiously made on the Doctor's part to wean the child from the Protestant faith, Mr. Megrath seized the first favorable opportunity, took possession of his daughter's person, and thereby provoked the proceeding through which the mother hopes to have her child restored to her protection.

Mr. Edwin James and his partner, Mr. Dunphy, appeared for the lady. Mr. John Graham represented Mr. Megrath.

The hearing was resumed yesterday before Judge Leonard, at Chambers. Mr. James, on the part of the appellant, stated to the Court that their desire was to confine their case to the events that had occurred since September, 1861, because it was since then that the articles of separation had been executed.

Mr. Graham, in reply, said he did not want to raise the family curtain and exhibit scenes that ought not to be shown to the public, unnecessarily. He met the counsel in the same spirit in which he set out.

Mr. James then called

Dr. Malcolm Ives, who testified thus:

Q.—How long have you been acquainted with Mrs. Megrath? A.—I may say since she was born—in one way—but I saw her as a child; I went to Europe, and when I returned I found her married to Charles Megrath.

Q.—You are a connection of hers? A.—She is my first cousin, the daughter of my mother's brother.

Q.—I'll begin with the date of the articles of separation. Were you aware of differences having existed between herself and her husband previously to the articles of separation? A.—I was.

Q.—Proceedings had been commenced for a divorce by Mrs. Megrath?

(Objected to.)

Q.—That is so? A.—I do not understand that question.

Q.—Proceedings had been commenced? A.—They had.

Q.—Now, since the date of the articles of separation—that is, Sept. 2? A.—The first or second, I don't know which.

Q.—September the 2d, 1861; have you been in the habit of visiting your cousin, Mrs. Megrath? A.—Frequently; I may say continually.

Q.—At the date of the articles of separation, where was your cousin residing? Where did she commence to reside after that? A.—The articles of separation were executed in the presence of myself and wife, she being our guest at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Q.—After that where did she first commence to reside, and do you remember, after Sept. 1, 1861? A.—The next I know about that time (it must have been within a very few days of it, I do not recollect,) she resided in Ninth-street—boarded there; they received her there provisionally, until she could get some permanent place of residence; I don't pretend to know exactly how long she was there; it was a short time.

Q.—Did you visit her there? A.—I did, most decidedly; she removed from Ninth-street to No. 24 West Twelfth-street; I aided her in moving; she resided in Twelfth-street until about the first of last June; I cannot remember what date; she commenced breaking up housekeeping for the Summer, and they then removed; most happy, I am sure, to be quit of it; she went back to Mrs. Billings, in Ninth-street; Mrs. Billings then living next door to where she had made the year before; the intervening places, lodgings under my auspices in several places, she moved to the house of Mrs. Mott, in Manhasset, Long Island; my memory for dates is very unreliable, but I should say that brought it up to the 23d or 24th of July, but I would not state this as positive; I state to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Q.—While there, did you also reside in Manhasset? A.—Yes; I resided in the same house with her during the first two weeks she was at Mrs. Mott's.

Q.—She remained a week after you left on your visit to her? A.—A week, very nearly; on her return to the City she went to a place recommended by her physician, in Twelfth-street, No. 37, and she is residing there at this time.

Q.—Have you continued your visits to her house as you did before? A.—Frequently.

Q.—That being so, after the execution of these articles of separation, and after these differences occurred, was she left very much alone. (Objected to.)

Q.—Did you find that she was left alone without any adviser or any friend? (Objected to as leading.)

Q.—Did you find her very much alone? A.—Very much, indeed; I may say, utterly isolated.

Q.—Did you know of any persons with whom she had to consult as a friend and adviser? A.—No one, excepting myself—and my wife, by letters.

Q.—Now, during the whole of this time, subject to intervals during which the little girl visited her father, was the child, Emily, residing with her mother? A.—Well, she was absent sometimes.

Q.—With the exception of the intervals, when she was absent visiting with her father, did she reside with her mother? A.—Until the time she was seized by her father.

Q.—Was that so until the child was taken by her father? A.—Yes, Sir; that was so.

Q.—Now I must ask you this question before further proceeding: At any time and upon any occasion since the deed of separation, or before, have you ever had any improper intimacy of any kind with your cousin, Mrs. Megrath?

Mr. Graham.—I thought you were going to limit this to the time that has elapsed since the deed of separation was made.

Mr. James—Well, since the date of the deeds of the articles of separation—we will call it the 2d September, 1861—have you on any occasion ever had any improper intimacy of any kind with your cousin, Mrs. Megrath? A.—Never.

Q.—Have you read the return made by Mr. Megrath to the writ of habeas corpus? A.—I have; I have read it myself.

Q.—Have you had your attention directed to this allegation: "During this period, her mother and the said Ives have been, and are now, as this respondent, upon his information and belief, avers and charges, planning and continuing their illicit intimacy?" A.—I have.

Q.—Is that true? A.—It is an infamous slander.

Q.—I understand your answer, I mean to be explicit—that you have never been guilty of any impropriety of conduct, from the period beginning with the date of the articles of separation until this moment? A.—Not only from that moment; it applies to the whole period from the time of separation to this date.

Q.—And every hour of this time? A.—Yes, and every hour.

Q.—And at every place where you visited? A.—And at every place where we visited.

Q.—Now, Dr. Ives, you are a Roman Catholic? A.—I am.

Q.—Do you remember who prepared the articles of separation of Sept. 2, 1861? A.—I do; they were prepared by John W. Ashmead.

Q.—Do you remember, on that occasion, a question arising on the execution of the articles of separation, of your visiting Mrs. Megrath? A.—I do.

Q.—During such separation? A.—I do.

Q.—Do you remember the insertion of the clause—I'll read now in italics from the paper itself—"She shall not suffer her said child to be visited or influenced by any person who is, or has been, or claims to have been a Roman Catholic priest." Do you remember that? A.—Perfectly.

Q.—Was that directed to you personally? A.—I have no doubt of it whatever.

Q.—During your visits to your cousin, extending over the period you have named since September, 1861, you say the child was living with—A.—With her mother.

Q.—In your visits to her mother, while you were staying in the house with her on Long Island, did you frequently see the child—constantly?—A.—Frequently, I do not say constantly.

Q.—Did you ever, upon any occasion, attempt to influence her, or demoralize her, or direct her mind with reference to her religion? A.—Never.

Q.—Upon any occasion? A.—Never, upon any occasion, or in any place, directly or indirectly, in the most remote degree, whatsoever, according to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Q.—Was the subject of religion ever introduced in her presence from the time of this stipulation? A.—Never, since I have known her up to the present hour.

Q.—Your cousin, Mrs. M., is a Protestant? A.—I presume so, as she never acted as a Catholic.

Q.—You were aware that she had, in the articles of stipulation, agreed to educate her child in the Protestant faith? A.—I was.

Q.—Did you ever interfere with that stipulation? A.—I never did; no, either directly or indirectly.

Q.—Did you know that Mrs. Megrath, while residing in New-York, went with her child to a Protestant place of worship? A.—I don't know how often they went there; I know that they went sometimes at least; I was told that they were at church when I went there, but I know nothing further about that.

Mr. James—I think this is all I shall ask you at present.

Cross-examined.—Q.—Have you ever been a Catholic priest, Dr. Ives? A.—I have.

Q.—When was it? A.—Well, when was it? According to—; that is a question that must be answered in a twofold manner. According to the law of the Catholic Church, the man who is once a priest is still a priest. A person who is once a priest is always a priest. I continued to perform priestly duties until January, 1854.

Q.—When did you commence? A.—In 1848.

Q.—Where were you ordained? A.—In Innspruck, Tyrol, Austria.

Q.—Did you pursue theological studies at any time previous to that? A.—I had pursued theological studies previous to that for ten years—no, the accident will excuse me, for not thinking for a moment—for about six years, during which I was partly in Rome and partly in Munich, to whose institutions I went for culture.

Q.—How long were you at each place. A.—I was at the Propaganda, in the outside of the Roman College, three years, and in Munich between three and four years.

The witness being furthermore cross-examined, testified that he had abandoned the priesthood after being offered an honorable position by the right reverend, the Bishop of Natchez. He further declared under oath, on his cross-examination yesterday, (Friday,) that though he had kissed Mrs. Megrath repeatedly, and that though she had sat upon his lap, and he had put his arm around her person, he was never once guilty of a licentious thought, nor had ever once been guilty of any indelicacy toward her which her mother or brothers might not see and, with perfect sense of harmlessness, allow.

Yesterday, in compliance with Mr. James' request, which was based on the double ground that it was not only in compliance with the statute, but in accordance with the requirements of the common law, the learned Judge (Leonard) decreed that Mrs. Megrath might be examined. To this Graham objected and excepted.

The case is therefore postponed until Tuesday next, at 11 A. M.

Are Commissions for Discounting Usurious?

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Robertson.

The Chatham Bank vs. Frederick B. Betts et al.—This was an action upon a promissory note, drawn by the defendant Betts, in favor of the defendant Thomas, and indorsed by Thomas and Potter. The note was for the sum of $2,350, payable three months after date, (18th September, 1861,) at the Mechanics' Bank.

The defence set up was that the note was given for the sole benefit of the defendant Thomas, without consideration, and that it was discounted by Potter upon an usurious agreement, by which he, Potter, received $150 as extra interest, and that the suit was prosecuted for the defendant, Potter, who was the real party in interest. On the trial Thomas testified that the note was given to realize the amount for the benefit of Betts; and Potter testified that Thomas called upon him repeatedly with the note, desiring him to discount it; he, Potter, replying that he had no money, Thomas insisted, and the witness finally obtained the discount of the plaintiff.

It appeared from the testimony that Potter gave Thomas a check for $2,000, and subsequently another for $200—but never paid over the entire proceeds coming into his hands. The balance, which Potter failed to pay over, was the usury set up in the case. The Jury, however, found for the plaintiffs.

The defendants thereupon moved for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was contrary to the evidence. After reviewing the entire evidence submitted on the motion, Justice Robertson held that although Potter failed to pay over the entire proceeds, and although it did not appear whether or not it was understood that the balance retained by him was a commission for his trouble and responsibility in the matter, still there was nothing to show the transaction usurious in the hands of the plaintiffs, who discounted it for Potter at legal rates of interest. The motion for a new trial was denied.

D. M. Porter, for plaintiffs; J. D. Warren, for defendants.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Barbour.

Gallighan vs. Peiffer.—On the payment of $20, and $10 costs of this motion by the defendant to the plaintiff's attorney, the judgment entered herein to be vacated and set aside, and the action be denied, discontinued and settled, such payment to be made within ten days.

Gregis vs. Lynch.—Order granted.

SECOND BOARD.

[illegible]

FRIDAY, Sept. 5—P. M.

Wall-street has again been excited to-day by various rumors from Washington and the line of the Potomac adverse to the Government cause, upon which the speculators in Gold advanced the price to 119 ¾ cent., as they did on Wednesday last, but without the slightest authority for the truth of the reports in question. At the close of the day, on the discovery that nothing of an adverse tenor had occurred since yesterday's dispatches nor likely immediately to occur in the direction of the rebel invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania, the price of Gold fell back to 118¾ ¾ cent., and the bidding for Stocks was ¼@½ ¾ cent. better than on the Street between the sessions of the Board. As remarked the other day the anxiety on the Street appeared to be greater to give countenance or plausibility to rumors which, from their inflammatory nature, would advance the upward speculation in Gold, than to make profitable the downward speculation in Stocks. The prominent buyers of the one were large sellers of the other. At the early Board the general market was weaker than yesterday, by ¼@½ ¾ cent., with a fair amount of actual business at the decline. When the Brokers adjourned to the Street the rumors, between 12½ and 2 o'clock P. M., were frequent, and designed to be alarming, and sales forced under this condition of feeling were at a further decline of ¼@½ ¾ cent. When the Second Board convened, there was a steadier temper on the market, and prices recovered part of the decline of the forenoon. Later in the afternoon, Gold left off at 118¾, and the Railway Stocks steady, at about Second-Board prices:

	Thurs.	Fri.		Thurs.	Fri.
N. Y. Central	80⅞	80¾	Hudson	62⅞	61½
Erie	37⅞	37	Pacific	116⅞	116⅞
Erie Preferred	55⅞	56	Panama	128½	128½
Rock Island	67⅞	66⅞	Missouri	46⅞	46
Galena	72	70⅞	Tennessee	49	49⅞
Mich. Central	64⅞	64⅞	U. S. 6s, 1881	99	99
Mich. Southern	41⅞	41⅞	U. S. 5s, 1874	99	99
Mich. Southern guar.	69⅞	69⅞	U. S. Notes, C. H.	100	100⅞
Illinois Cen.	63⅞	64⅞	Treas. 7.30 ¾ cts.	103⅞	102⅞
Toledo	23⅞	23⅞	Billion Loan 6s	102⅞	103
Reading	46⅞	46⅞	Gold	117⅞	118⅞

The market for Money is 4@5 ¾ cent. on demand loan, with an easy supply, and 4 to 6 ¾ cent. on prime discounts, according to date. The Customs duties continue on a liberal scale, and the entries of Foreign Dry Goods this week are large. The rates of Exchange are scarcely up to the rise in Gold. Leading drawers were asking 130 ¾ cent. on London at the close of business. The rates on the Continent are quoted as follows by Mr. N. Brandt, Bill Broker, No. 39 Exchange-place:

Paris—60 days' sight ¾ dollar	47 25⅞c.
Paris—3 days' sight per dollar	46 25⅞c.
Amsterdam—60 days' sight ¾ guilder	40⅞c.
Hamburg—60 days' sight per marc banco	44⅞c.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

There are very few new developments relative to army movements in Virginia, though there are plenty of rumors. There appears to be no doubt, however, that the rebels are extending their lines into the Shenandoah Valley, with a view to crossing into Maryland, and carrying out their favorite programme of invading the North. Indeed, one of our dispatches has it that they have already actually crossed in some force below Point of Rocks, but subsequently recrossed into Virginia, as though hesitating to make the experiment of effecting a lodgment in Maryland. They are also stated to have thrown shells across the Upper Potomac, but without doing any damage. Meantime quiet continues in Washington, and no apprehension is felt in regard to the movements of the rebels.

Gen. McClellan, in an order dated the 4th inst., has assumed command of the fortifications of Washington and of all the troops for the defence of the capital, and has required such returns to be made to him as will enable him in the shortest possible time to understand thoroughly the positions of the various corps, and to place them in condition for immediate service.

With reference to the loss of stores during the late army movements, the Washington Star of Thursday says: "The stories alleging that considerable quantities of our Quartermaster's and Commissary's stores fell into the hands of the rebels in the course of our late retrograde movement, are untrue. With the exception of the 90,000 rations only that they captured at Manassas (which, by-the-by, were well nigh entirely wasted by the party making the capture in their hitherto ungovernable zeal to clutch whatever he could to eat,) no other of our provisions fell into their hands. They also took forty-eight wagon loads of hospital-stores, the bulk of them being whisky only. We have been able to hear of no other captures of stores made by them."

It appears from latest accounts that our troops have been withdrawn wholly or in part from Aquia Creek, but that our military stores there have been amply secured. Five or six of our gunboats are lying in that vicinity. It is doubtful whether the rebels have yet reoccupied Fredericksburgh.

A Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press says: "Gen. Cadwalader is here, with the view of superseding Gen. Butler in command at New-Orleans, but has not yet officially received his appointment. His Staff is yet unappointed, with the exception of Capt. Isaac Moses, his Assistant Adjutant-General and Chief of Staff. Capt. Moses was till the war a resident of New-York, and has been till recently an Aid to Gen. Heintzelman. In his new position he will rank as Major."

A dispatch from Gen. Kelley, received at Wheeling, Va., on Tuesday, says that he was attacked by the rebel guerrillas under Jenkins and Imboden, the same who made the raid on Buckhannon and Weston, and that he defeated them, killing and capturing several of their number. No particulars are furnished. Previous to the fight, Col. Mulligan had gone from New Creek to Kelley's aid.

Our correspondence from Havana, dated the 24th ult., informs us of the arrival at Cardenas of the rebel steamer Oreto, lately released by the Admiralty Court at Nassau. She has changed her name to the Florida, but her identity is undoubted. Capt. Semmes, who was in command of her at Nassau, has, it is said, returned again to Europe—probably to bring out another vessel—and she is now commanded by Capt. Maffit, formerly of the Crusader. The news of her arrival at Cardenas was immediately conveyed to our squadron at Key West, and there were, at last accounts, three National vessels watching her movements. It is said that the Captain-General ordered her to leave Cardenas at once, but Maffit urged that he was in distress, and refused to go. There is no other news of importance from Havana. There was very little fever there.

Col. Boyd has telegraphed to Gen. Davidson, at St. Louis, from Greenville, that Major Lippert had obtained another signal victory over the guerrillas in Southeast Missouri. With a squadron of his regiment, Thirteenth Illinois Cavalry, two companies of the Twenty-fourth Missouri Volunteers, and one howitzer of the Second Missouri Artillery, the Major attacked Col. White, whose force is estimated at near one thousand men, about twelve miles Southeast from Pitman's Ferry, on Current River; and, after a desperate conflict, lasting one hour, completely routed White, capturing all his wagons, the camp equipage, and taking many prisoners and horses and mules. Our loss in killed and wounded was slight when compared with that of the enemy. This is the second time within a few days in which Maj. Lippert and his command have distinguished themselves by rapid movements and decided victories over the enemy.

GENERAL NEWS.

By the steamship City of New-York, from Liverpool on the 27th and Queenstown on the 28th inst., we have dates from Liverpool to the morning of the 29th, three days later than those by the Asia. The steam-frigate Thames had put into Portsmouth and Plymouth and had been ordered away from both places without the privilege of coaling or repairing. A paragraph in the Paris Moniteur, attributed to the Emperor himself, declares that France will defend the Pope. It was reported that Garibaldi and a portion of his followers had got away from Catania in two steamers, and had landed at Milito in Calabria. There was great excitement in the latter province, and several towns had pronounced in favor of Garibaldi. The Neapolitan Provinces had been declared in a state of siege. Cotton had again advanced in the Liverpool market. Breadstuffs were declining, and provisions were very dull. Consols closed at 93¼@93¾.

The steamship Asia arrived at Boston, from Halifax, at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, and her mails reached New-York about 8 o'clock last evening. The news has already been published.

The funeral services attending the burial of the body of the late Maj.-Gen. Kearney, United States Volunteers, will be performed to-day. The body, which has been lying in state at East Newark for a day, will be received by a detachment of Government troops from Governor's Island, and the Fifth and Eighth Regiments New-York State Militia, on its arrival at the Jersey City Ferry, whence it will be taken to Trinity Church. Reliable reports from Washington, state that it was the announced intention of the Secretary of War to place Gen. Kearney at the head of an army corps, as a reward for his gallantry and skill.

Senator Simmons, of Rhode Island, has resigned his seat in the United States Senate, and Lieut.-Gov. Arnold has been elected by the General Assembly of the State to fill his unexpired term.

The foremast and mainmast were put in the frigate Ironsides, at the Philadelphia Navy-yard, on Thursday, and the mizzen mast placed in position to be hoisted on board yesterday. A large force is at work upon the vessel.

The United States steamer Augusta arrived at Philadelphia, from Port Royal, on Wednesday last. She comes North for repairs, which it will take about two weeks to complete.

The Stock market was much excited yesterday by adverse rumors from the line of the Potomac, and Gold rose to 119 ⅞ cent. Later in the day there was more confidence, and the decline in stocks was partially recovered. Gold left off at 118¾; Exchange on London 130 ⅞ cent.

The advance in Gold yesterday favorably affected the market for the principal kinds of Breadstuffs, which were in good request. Flour and Corn advanced; prime lots of Wheat were also quoted firmer. Pork, Butter, Cheese and Sugars were more sought after, as were also Pig Lead and Ingot Copper. Cotton, Hay, Hops, Whale Oil, Tallow, Kentucky Tobacco, were in fair demand. Whisky was plenty and heavy at reduced rates. The Freight market was more active, and rates were advancing.

Our Officers in the Field—A Needed Reform.

It is pretty evident to everybody by this time that our armies have been out-generaled by the rebels. The fact is humiliating, and one which we should rejoice to see refuted. But the logic of results proves it. In almost every instance where the two armies have met, the rebel Generals have out-maneuvred or out-managed ours. They have known precisely where our weak points were, while we have not known theirs. They have got upon our flanks or in our rear, in spite of all our efforts to prevent it. They have turned our positions,—misled us as to their own movements,—anticipated and thwarted ours,—outnumbered us at specific points, whatever the comparative aggregates might be,—deceived us by pretended retreats, and managed, by some device or other, to get the better of us in nearly every engagement.

Now, all this is the real art of War. We sometimes talk as if it was unfair in them to take such advantages of us. But this is very absurd—for these devices constitute the strategy of war, and good generalship consists in the mastery and skillful use of them. Our commanding Generals thus far have proved lamentably deficient in these indispensable qualifications. They have not known how to handle their troops to the best advantage. They have allowed the enemy to seize every advantage of position and of time. Against such incompetency in the commanding Generals, the best fighting in the world is of no avail.

Our Government must reform the generalship of the army if it expects to win victories and crush the rebellion. There is no possible way of giving the rebels aid and comfort more directly than by keeping an incompetent General in position. There is no surer way of giving them a long succession of conquests and a final victory over the Government, than by keeping our troops under officers proved to be incapable. The Government must show no weakness here. It must dismiss instantly every commander who fails, in conduct or in skill, on the field of battle. Thanks to the exclusion of newspaper correspondents from the field, the country has no independent and trustworthy means of learning the facts on this subject; but if the reports that have straggled to the public knowledge are well founded, the President can have no excuse for hesitation in regard to some of those concerned in the late engagements. And if he keeps in command a General who has been proved incompetent, he becomes responsible himself for the lives of the men whom he thus sends to useless slaughter.

On the other hand, the higher commands should be filled from those who have shown ability in subordinate positions. No army in the world has better officers than some of ours. Fitz-John Porter, Franklin, Hooker, Heintzelman, Keyes, Sumner, and others who might be named, have handled their troops with splendid ability, and have led them personally and unflinchingly in every engagement. Kearney had proved himself not only the bravest of the brave, but a skillful and accomplished soldier, and would have led a corps of an army with brilliant success. The Government must give the country the benefit of services whose transcendent value has thus been proved. Rank, age, political influence, personal solicitation—everything should yield to the paramount weight of conspicuous and established merit. Let the President select the Major-General who has handled his division throughout with the steadiest valor and the most comprehensive and effective skill, and give him command of the Army of Virginia, and he will have taken the first and most important step toward destroying the rebel army and crushing the rebellion. If he has not the strength or self-reliance to take this step, the rebellion will certainly crush him.

It is perfectly idle to conceal the fact that, as we stand to-day, we are beaten; and the same faults which have beaten us hitherto will, if continued, beat us to the end of the chapter. If we persist in the policy thus far pursued,—if we have not better Generals in the army, and better councils in the Cabinet, and more vigor, a more high-toned energy, a more resolute and well-aimed determination in the Government that we have had hitherto, the rebellion will conquer the Government. Jeff. Davis will take Mr. Lincoln's seat, and the Constitution of the Confederacy will replace the Constitution of the United States. But with such a reform, promptly started and vigorously carried out, we can conquer the rebels and restore the ascendency of the National flag.

Gen. McClellan's New Command.

Gen. McClellan, in a general order, "assumes command of the fortifications of Washington and of all the troops for the defence of the Capital." His appointment to this post is eminently judicious. The position is one which he is especially qualified to fill with ability and success. He is confessedly one of the most accomplished engineers in the army, and has no superior in a thorough mastery of the science of war. He is vigilant, laborious, careful of his troops, and quite certain to hold a fortified position committed to his care. He believes in earthworks and is preeminently skilled in the whole art and mystery of entrenchments. We have no fears for the safety of Washington while it remains under his charge.

Some of our contemporaries speak as if Gen. McClellan had again been invested with the command of the whole army. We do not so understand it. Last year he commanded the army which was to capture Richmond; now he commands only those troops who are held for the defence of Washington. Last year he was at the head of an army in the field—moving against the enemy;—now he commands only fortifications and the troops which are to hold them. The positions are essentially different,—and we regard Gen. McClellan's talents as much better adapted to the post he now holds than to the one assigned him last year.

We do not think the country would regard the restoration of Gen. McClellan to the active command of a force destined for offensive operations with entire satisfaction. He has not vindicated his preëminent fitness for such a position by success—which is the only test possible for a General. A Commander may have the talents of Napoleon, but unless he wins victories he is not the man needed for the place. The only object of fighting is to conquer. The only indispensable qualification in a Commanding General is the ability to whip the enemy. If he does this, he is the man the country wants. If he fails in doing it, he is just the man the country does not want for that work—though for some other work he may prove to be precisely the man required. We regard Gen. McClellan as having gone through exactly this ordeal. He has had the finest army this country ever saw, placed in his hands for a year, for the purpose of taking Richmond—and instead of taking it he has barely saved his army from destruction. This is not success. He may have shown great ability; he may have conducted skillful retreats; he may have repelled with vigor energetic and formidable attacks,—but he has not taken Richmond, and this was precisely what he was expected and had promised to do. There may have been good reasons for his not doing it,—but the country wants, not reasons but success; and a good General will command success in one way or another. If one plan won't do it, he will devise another. If he is interfered with, he will override the interference. He must conquer circumstances and cut his own path to victory as he goes along; but he must go.

We have never joined the assailants of McClellan. This journal has done its full share in enlisting in his support that public confidence and hopeful trust which he required for the task assigned him. But, on the other hand, we have never echoed the laudations lavished upon him from political or selfish motives. We have always reserved the right to judge him, as every high officer, civil or military, should be judged, by his acts—by the results of his service; and judging him thus, we should be simply trifling with a great cause and a great country if we were to hesitate in saying that, as a General in the field,—charged with the conduct of offensive war,—he had failed. But he has also developed qualities which fit him preëminently for the defensive service to which he has now been assigned.

International Comity and the Tuscarora.—The telegraphic announcement from Cape Race, to the effect that the British authorities have ordered away the United States gunboat Tuscarora from the British coast, without allowing her the privilege of coaling, and while, too, she was in a leaky condition, will doubtless be read with mingled indignation and surprise. The only possible justification that can be presented for this gross violation of international comity, is the fact that the British authorities some months ago decided that the vessels of both belligerents should be excluded from British ports. This was a most oppressive stretch of the rights of neutrals, as what would fall lightly on the insignificant marine of the rebels must necessarily be felt most severely by our numerous and widespread navy. However, as the English sensibilities were so dreadfully shocked by the simultaneous presence at Liverpool of the Nashville and the Tuscarora, and at Gibraltar of the Sumter and the bull-dog of Uncle Sam set to watch the rebel craft, we were fain to yield without remonstrance.

But what was an act of rigor, while the Confederates had two or three war vessels afloat in European waters, becomes an intolerable oppression now that the rebel navy is extinct. The Tuscarora, in watching the outfitting of vessels with contraband aid and comfort to the rebels in British ports, is fulfilling a duty which Earl Russell has conceded to be perfectly proper and legitimate. In his late reply to the Liverpool shipowners, who remonstrated against similar acts by our cruisers at the British port of Nassau, he has acknowledged this in the frankest and fairest manner. And now to prevent our carrying this out, by refusing our war vessels hospitality, is simply to prevent our exercising a conceded belligerent right, and in so far to play into the hands of the rebels. This is neither neutrality, decency, nor justice. The conduct calls for a sharp remonstrance on the part of Secretary Seward.

The Pacific Railroad Company.—The preliminaries of the Organization of the Union Pacific Railroad Company were completed yesterday at Chicago, and the Convention adjourned. The closing business was to fix the places and period for the opening of the subscription books.

So far as may be judged from the proceedings, briefly sketched by our own reporter, and still more briefly reported by telegraph, the deliberations were conducted with cool, practical sense, and a thorough appreciation of the magnitude of the undertaking, and of the possibilities of railroad enterprise. The members embodied, indeed, the very best attainable representation of the business portion of the country—the capitalists, the projectors, the contrivers and finishers of great and successful improvements. Party found no place in the Convention. The entire subject was discussed in a strictly business point of view; the only (and that a mild) conflict of opinion occurring in regard to the route to be taken by the road beyond the Kansas frontier—a matter which was not passed upon, and which, after all, is reserved, by the terms of the bill, for the final decision of the President.

It could hardly be otherwise than that some important additions would be made to the amount of intelligence brought to the preparation of the bill by Congress, in an assemblage constituted, like that at Chicago, of practical railroad men and experienced capitalists. The act is not free from errors of omission, and surrounds the construction of the road with conditions which would forever prevent a safe company from entering upon the construction of the road. Thus no power is given the corporation to condemn lands, the presumption seeming to have preoccupied the minds of the legislators that the road passed nowhere through lands not the property of the United States. In this particular an amendment of the law would be indispensable, as the fact is, large tracts of private lands will be needed to build the road. The reservation of twenty-five per cent of the bonds to be issued by Government to the Company until the entire line shall be completed, is also fatal to the initiation of the enterprise; the easy alternative being to place these residuary bonds in the hands of trustees of unquestioned probity, so they may be available as guarantees of the Company's credit. The reserve was of course dictated by a doubt as to the good faith of the future Company, but it only serves in its present form to cripple their resources. The Commissioners, also, object to the Government's preference in the use of the road; seeing that Government might monopolize both road and telegraph for years, during which the Corporation would lose all income. The Government priority should be more distinctly defined. And, finally, it is believed that unless the act be so altered as to permit the Company to take seven per cent. upon its invested capital from the earnings of the road, that no capitalist will be found to enter upon an enterprise so tremendous, and so far beyond the guidance of experience. The idea is not that Government shall guarantee seven per cent. dividends, but that if profits are made justifying such dividends, that they shall be declared. These amendments seem authorized by ordinary business-like caution, and if authoritatively urged upon Congress, will no doubt be accepted. Until they are made it will hardly serve a practical purpose to open the subscription books.

A Trading Senator Resigned.—Senator Simmons, of Rhode Island, has had virtue enough to do voluntarily that which the United States Senate had not virtue enough to compel him to do—vacate his seat in the Senate. Nominally, at least, he resigned his position, though we judge that the pressure brought to bear upon him by the public sentiment of his own State, since he got home, was so strong as to make his resignation partake of the nature of at least moral compulsion. From the astounding confessions of personal corruption which he made at the last session of Congress, and from the fact that he confessed he could see no harm in the downright bribery he owned to, it is clear that neither his conscience nor his sense of propriety had anything to do with the matter. It has been purely the result of local and national opinion, and of the universal disgust expressed at his course by the Press. It was said, after the adjournment of last session, that the reason the Senate refused to expel him, after his confessions of corrupt conduct, was that he had threatened to make exposures in many other Senators' cases, which would be far more infamous than those he made in his own. In this view, we may have lost something by his resignation; for though we have heard enough already of the sickening details of Governmental corruption, yet there is nothing more essential to public well-being than that Congressional knavery be exposed. Mr. Simmons' term only lasted till the 4th of March next; but we are glad that for even the brief Winter session an honest man will occupy his seat. After that time, the noblest of all Rhode Island's modern sons, Gov. Sprague, will adorn the place in the Senate which Simmons has disgraced.

Turned Up Again.—Gen. Cassius M. Clay has been, (not fighting a battle, but) making a speech in Kentucky. As happens occasionally with him he said some sensible things,—though he ran upon a hobby or two with less success. He thought England's proclamation of neutrality would have justified us in declaring war, and that the Times correspondent ought to have been sent home much sooner than he was,—which is possible, inasmuch as he was not sent home at all.

In regard to Slavery, Mr. Clay has become quite moderate. He said the Republican Party had accomplished all it ever desired on this subject, and that the Government had no power to emancipate slaves except to weaken the rebels. He thought peace the great object to be sought for now, and said that if the South would lay down their arms he would advise a repeal of all confiscation acts and a general amnesty.

Gen. Clay said he should not go into the field unless he could "conduct the war according to his own judgment." As we have not heard that President Lincoln intends to [illegible] the field. We hope it will not now be found necessary to send him back to Russia, for that would involve the necessity of bringing Mr. Cassius home.

Profit and Loss.

The great mass of our people are unquestionably in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war. Yet amidst the loyal throng can be found here and there a few dissenters, the most conspicuous of whom are a little knot of philosophers whose views are plausible enough to challenge comment and deserve refutation. We allude to the people who do not see the good of carrying on the war for the preservation of the Union. They admit the Government to be all right, and the rebels all wrong. They would gladly see our troubles at an end, and all the States reunited under the old flag. They detest the principle of secession, and cleave to that of undivided nationality. But, to restore things as they were, our reasoners claim, will cost too many lives and too much money. The result, if achieved, will not defray the inevitable expense of attaining it. They say, therefore, with the optimist, "The game is not worth the candle."

Let us put the case fully and fairly. Do we fight, it is asked, to demonstrate to the world our material power? Already our armies exceed in numbers the great military force of France, and speedily our navies will equal in strength the greatest naval power of Great Britain. Inasmuch as this vast array is brought into action exclusively by the loyal States, it is clear that those States are abundantly able to face, single-handed, any power in the world, and what beyond this capacity is required? Do we fight, then, for the purpose of controlling more territory? Already in the loyal boundaries there are millions of unoccupied acres. In one of the loyal States there are two square miles of land to each individual of the population. It need scarcely be asked if we fight for profit, because it is notorious that we are accumulating a debt of massive proportions, while the money of patriotic individuals is flowing profusely in aid of the measures of the Government. Still further, it is urged that had we quietly acquiesced in the action of the seceding States, the lapse of a dozen years would have found us, from industrial expansion, immigration and other natural causes, richer and more populous than was the whole Union at the breaking out of the rebellion. Lastly, however, it is claimed that had we adopted the doctrine of non-coercion, the Cotton States by this time would have returned like the prodigal son, and would have been begging for readmission to the family circle.

Such are the arguments and speculations of the clique of theorists we have described. We have presented, we believe, a candid exposition of the principal data from whence they draw their conclusions as to the inutility and consequently the bad policy of prosecuting the war. These data certainly present a specious appearance, and are calculated to carry some weight with unreflecting minds, but a little careful consideration will show that they are as unsound and untenable as their promulgators are unpatriotic.

First, as to the number of our armies. Whether their numbers are great or small, if we have armies at all, they must be adequate to the work which is to be performed. The bridge must be as long as the flood is wide. So far as commanding the respect of foreign nations is concerned, the problem is, not so much to raise great armies as to succeed in what we undertake to do with them. If we, who are at least three times as numerous as the rebels, to say nothing of our superiority in resources, are unable to subdue them, to point to huge armies is hardly more likely to frighten Europe than is John Chinaman's strategy of beating gongs, making faces, and running down hill with a sword in each hand.

Secondly, with respect to territory. This is not a question of immediate use, but one of abstract right and justice. Because a man has two coats, surely affords no reason why a thief should steal one, on the ground that only one can be worn at a time. Much of the present rebel territory became the property of the United States by absolute purchase, as in the cases of Louisiana and Florida. Some by cession and voluntary annexation, as in the cases of Texas and New-Mexico. Only a fraction of the persons now in rebellion were in those States at all at the time the title to them became vested in the National Government. We made sacrifices of blood and treasure to obtain those lands for the future honor, profit and convenience of the people of the whole United States; and with God's help we will retain them for those purposes.

Thirdly, as regards profit. The war is truly costing vast sums of money, and may cost much more; still, it is generally admitted, considering the whole nature of the case, that it will be better to spend a thousand millions upon it in two years, than two hundred for five, or one hundred for ten years. Even then our debt will be far less than that of any foreign Power of anything like the same strength and numbers as ourselves. Moreover, the yearly sums we should be forced to expend for armies, fortresses and other items inseparable from the presence of a turbulent and hostile neighbor, would far exceed what the interest on our national debt is likely under any circumstances to be.

Finally, as to our progress and growth if separated from the cotton States. The principle of disunion once laid down, and successfully illustrated, would debar us forever from any prosperity or greatness approximating to those of the past. So far from crediting our supposed condition at the end of a dozen years, we believe their expiration would find four Governments instead of two; and that further lapse of time would see additional subdivisions. As to the theory of non-coercion, it is a mere unsupported hypothesis, with neither facts nor figures to sustain it; and even were we sure of its verification in the first instance, it would manifestly be a very dangerous experiment; for any State thereafter might secede at any moment, confident of being received again at her own pleasure, to the subversion of all order and National stability.

We have treated the subject, after the manner in which it has been brought to the world, [illegible] the said. We hope it will not now be found necessary to send him back to Russia, for that would involve the necessity of bringing Mr. Cassius home.

Knowing of the Private Schools of New-York City.—The advertising columns of the Times contain ample proof that while the work goes on, education does not stop. Scores of them, like a hundred different schools, in the various forms of seminaries, colleges, institutes, etc., announce themselves as about to open during the coming and subsequent week. These, it will be observed, are private educational establishments, and are altogether aside from our great public schools, which have already begun their new year. There should never be any but a healthful rivalry between the two, for both are needed. Excellent though the advantages be which the public schools present, there will always be many parents who prefer that their sons and daughters shall enjoy the more immediate care and the more enlarged advantages which private establishments afford. It will be hard, indeed, if from the copious choice our advertising columns present, they are not able to suit themselves.

Twelve Washington.—We continue to receive assurances that the forts on the Potomac are so strong that Washington cannot possibly be taken. We have no doubt of that fact. And, furthermore, we have not the slightest suspicion that the rebels intend to test the strength of those fortifications by attempting to take them. They have not been in the habit hitherto of assailing our strongest points, and they are not likely to change their habits at this late day. They will leave just enough men in front of Washington to keep us watching them; and then, with their main force, they will go to some point where the roads are not so rough. We trust Gen. Halleck will keep his eye on them.

Funk Omnipotent.—The Evening Post has an article explaining how it is that the law is powerless to suppress the notorious swindlers known as "Peter Funks." The technicalities of the law, it seems, are in their favor,—and the arm of the Government is, therefore, powerless against them. Can it not be shown that their business hinders enlistments? If it could, the Government would deal with them very summarily.

Sketch of Gen. Kearney.

Gen. Philip Kearney, who fell on Monday last in Virginia, and who will be buried this afternoon in the venerable soil of Trinity Church-yard, was a native of the city in which his bones will now find their final resting-place. Of the details of his life and of his military career, a gentleman who was personally acquainted with him, furnishes the following details:

While the whole country will feel the loss of this distinguished officer, his memory belongs peculiarly to New-York and New-Jersey. New-York City was his birthplace. His mother was the daughter of the noted philanthropist of Revolutionary fame, John Watts, the founder of the Leake and Watts Orphan House. His father, Philip Kearney, Esq., was of the old Jersey family of that name. Their homestead is in the outskirts of Newark. Immediately opposite to which Gen. Kearney himself purchased a beautiful estate and erected a splendid mansion, which his family now occupy. And though appointed Brigadier-General from New-Jersey, he was one of those named to the President for that position by the Governor of New-York.

The death of Gen. Kearney is at this time a great military calamity. He was precisely of that class of officers we now most want. He was distinguished for enterprise and dash; as much so, indeed, that his qualities as a strategist and tactician were almost overlooked. But they who knew him intimately will all agree that if there was a man among our Generals that possessed military genius that man was Philip Kearney.

He was 47 years of age. He was educated at Columbia College—studied law—but soon entered the army as Lieutenant of Dragoons. He served long gallantly and successfully fighting the Indians on the frontiers, under the command mainly of his uncle, the late Gen. Stephen W. Kearney. His distinction as a cavalry officer was such that he was sent abroad by our Government about the year 1839, to study and report upon the French military tactics. He entered the Polytechnic School—and soon after joined the First Chasseurs d'Afrique as a volunteer, and, with that regiment, fought through the Algerine war. His intrepidity and skill gained him enabled reputation and the distinction of the Cross of the Legion of Honor. He was greatly admired and caressed by his commander and associates.

Returning home he passed, with Gen. Scott, through all his battles in Mexico. His squadrons of cavalry formed Gen. Scott's body-guard. They were a splendid corps, the pride of the army, and were greatly distinguished. He was then Captain, but was brevetted Major for gallant conduct at Contreras and Cherubusco, and especially for his brilliant charge at the San Antonio gate of Mexico, where he lost his left arm.

After the Mexican war Maj. Kearney was again detailed to duty upon the Indian frontier, and continued in the active duties of his profession till 1851, when, tired of comparative inaction, and possessed of a competent fortune, he resigned and went to Europe. While there the crimean war occurred, of which he was a close and critical observer. Later yet, while he took place the Italian campaign. In this last campaign he volunteered as one of the Staff of Marshal Canrobert—was present at Magenta and Solferino, and conducted himself with such gallantry and skill that Louis Napoleon conferred on him the ribaud and cross of the Legion d'Honour.

No sooner had Sumter fallen than Maj. Kearney hastened to volunteer in defence of the Union. Shed to a life abroad, he felt the raise of Nationality, and his devotion to the Union was not only decided, but it excluded every other thought. He immediately returned home and offered his services to Gen. Scott. He was received with gladness—strong representations were made to the Government in his favor. The industry and energy of some Jerseymen, who desired a competent leader for their First Brigade, together with the defeat at Bull Run, overcame the want of political strength, and he received a commission as Brigadier.

Taking 4,000 raw, half-officered recruits, he immediately sought the outpost, and thenceforward, wherever the advance was, there were Kearney and his forces. His vigilance was sleepless. He trusted no subordinate. He would know for himself, and fight—the essential incident of great generals and profession. His first employment, when ordered to new positions, was his leading characteristic to ride the whole country through, leaving every road. He met his death throughout vigilance.

He was not only intra vigilans, but as energetic in action as any man in the army. The [illegible] Kearney—the 'hero'—the 'obstinate'—these were the phrases in which he was continually spoken of. He has passed through at least twelve engagements during this war. Was there an advance? He led it. Was there a retreat? He covered it. Ordered out to guard bridge-builders at Rappahannock Station, he personally reconnoitered the whole neighborhood, saw indications that the rebels were overwhelming Manassas, advanced upon it at once, and with Colonel Stowe, Gen. Taylor, just killed, also, first entered the enemy's works. Passing through the columns of Sumner's Corps, he rushed into the field at Williamsburgh, rallied there his men into battle array, and, leading them in person, won that bloody day—a day which would have well-nigh closed the war had he been permitted to improve it. Ordered to the front at Bull Run, to sustain Casey's disordered columns, he speculated a moment on the folly of endeavoring to support a half-broken line, insisting that true tactics required a renewed contest from the second line by the whole army, and, then, obeying his superiors, firmly sustained his post. As he feared, the next division retreated. The enemy flanked him. But he [illegible]

NEWS FROM HAVANA.

The Rebel Steamer Cuba Masquerading—New Arrival at Cardenas—Vessels of war Scattered from the Wrack for Here, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

HAVANA, Sunday, Aug. 26, 1862.

On the morning of the 20th inst. I received a telegram from Cardenas saying that the night before a Confederate vessel-of-war had anchored in the entrance to the harbor, English built, of true, and mounting eight guns. She came from Nassau, and reports that she has a crew of one hundred and fifty men; that her name is the Florida, and that she is commanded by Capt. MAURY.

This vessel is none other than the Oreto, lately released by the Admiralty Court at Nassau as an illegal prize.

I had news of her before, and was expecting her arrival. A letter from Nassau told me that she was coming, that she had seventy men, and that she hoped to complete her crew in Cuba; also, that Capt. MAURY, who was to have commanded her, had sailed for Havana, and that Capt. MAYNE, who formerly commanded the Crusader, was to command her in, stead.

The first officer of the Florida formerly held the same position on board of the Sumter.

The Florida is fitted with iron, and is calculated to resist any ordinary shot.

The news of her arrival was immediately sent from Cardenas, Matanzas and Havana to our squadron at Key West and there are now three National vessels of war waiting for her to make her exit from Cardenas. The Captain-General was much annoyed by her appearance at Cardenas and ordered her to leave at once for sea, but Capt. MAYNE urged that he was in distress and continued to remain there.

Two of the Florida's officers came to Havana the day before yesterday.

There were only 600 tons of coal in Cardenas, ye the Florida has been able to get some, though I am told her officers have had to pay $62 50 a ton for it to the Gas Company, and the latter will replace it from this city at $45.

The Florida claims to have destroyed several American merchantmen, on her way to Cardenas. I doubt this.

The Captain-General has ordered the Naval Officer at Cardenas to make a thorough search of the Florida, and if he finds any prisoners on board of her to liberate them.

The Captain-General seems as if he intended to act in a more honorable manner than he has done before in like cases, and promises to do all that our Government can expect.

The Confederate steamer Alice, alias Matagorda; Atlanta, alias Gen Rusk, and the California, have recently sailed for parts unknown.

The Spanish steamer Marion left on the 21st instant for Vera Cruz, with 200 head of cattle and provisions for the French forces at Orizaba and Vera Cruz.

There is little or no fever here.

Rates continue.

Arrival of the Daniel Webster with Sick and Wounded Soldiers.

The United States Sanitary Commission steamship Daniel Webster, Capt. BAYNES, arrived at this port last night from Alexandria bringing 568 sick and wounded soldiers. The Daniel Webster left New-York, Aug. 19, and has been since then transporting troops from Yorktown and Newport's Newsin Alexandria. There were four deaths during the passage, three of which were buried at Fortress Monroe, as follows: Edward Kountz, Co. A, Tenth Pennsylvania; Jos. A. Sherwood, Minnesota, died Sept. 2; John York, Co. C, Tenth New-York, died Sept. 2; Lieut. H. S. Wright, of New-York; died Sept. 3, body on board. The following are the officers attached to the ship: F. H. BAYNES, Commander; N. S. Drake, M.D., Surgeon in charge; James Ast, M.D., Assistant Surgeon; A. K. Starkweather, Commissary.

Dr. R. Hunter on the Causes of Consumption.

LETTER NO. XV.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

SIR: I now come to the consideration of the causes which produce Consumption. It is only by tracing the disease back to its source that the means necessary for its prevention can be discovered, or the treatment required for its cure made plain and intelligible to the non-professional reader.

Is Consumption caused by inheritance? That it is generally so regarded will not be denied. Indeed, so common is this belief among the people that few persons who come to me for an examination fail to tell me that they "know their lungs cannot be affected, for none of their family ever had Consumption."

Now, nothing could be further from the truth than the supposition that this disease is the necessary result of some taint implanted in the system by the parents. Thousands every year lose their lives by flattering themselves that their disease cannot be serious, because their family had previously escaped this scourge. They disregard the warning of a seated hacking cough, until the lungs become filled with tubercles, and only discover their error when, alas! it is too late to save them. What do the statistics of consumption teach us? Why, that out of every hundred consumptives, eighty acquire the disease from other causes, while only twenty can trace it in their family. Four cases out of every five occur without a trace of inheritance or predisposition. In my own practice, not more than fifteen in every hundred have any knowledge of the disease having previously occurred in their families, while eighteen at least trace it directly to "neglected colds," contrasted in an "Italian air," "dusty workshops," or some other source of local irritation. And in this respect my experience is not essentially different from that of other physicians who have studied the history of consumption. Dr. WALSHE, one of the physicians of the Hospital for Consumption in London, places the acquired cases at seventy-nine per cent, and those arising from family predisposition at twenty-one per cent. Barras, physician to one of the Paris hospitals, tells us that out of ninety-eight cases occurring under his observation, only two had a family predisposition. Rilliet, of Geneva, says, "Whole families, in which I have lived for years, were other wise healthy, I never saw, but one instance of hereditary consumption." Bayle, Louis, Andral, Lombard, Chomel, Rayer, Piorry, Gueneau de Mussy, P. Dubois (of Geneva), and a long train of other eminent names, might be added to the same effect, but I think the few I have quoted are more than sufficient to establish the fact.

In some rare instances consumption is inherited, but never unless the mother has the disease when the child is born, and then the child generally dies a few months after birth. In the same sense, small pox and fifty other diseases are hereditary. I have seen a child born with small pox pustules over the whole body. A mother that has not herself got consumption can no more transmit it to her offspring than she could transmit small pox without having had it. No parent can transmit what she has not.

We inherit from our parents form, features and temperament. In inheriting the form of our parents we inherit the liabilities which that form entails. If they are tall, their children will also be tall. If one be tall and the other short, some children may resemble one parent and some the other. If one has a large chest and the other a small one, the same differences will be found in the children. Whoever has a small chest has an increased liability to consumption from this cause. Children born with this defect in their organism are always delicate in youth. They cannot run as far or lift as much as other boys of their age, and yet they may be perfectly healthy. They go on to the age of puberty without the least sign of consumption, and then one after another as they reach that age may sicken and fall into a decline. Why is this? It is because when youth suddenly expands into manhood and womanhood, a great increase takes place in the size of the body, and in quantity of blood in the system. This requires a corresponding increase in the quantity of the air received at each inspiration into the lungs. As the lungs are too small in adult life, there is a loss of balance between the quantity of the blood and the air, and, as a consequence, the blood becomes impure, tubercles are deposited, and the patient falls into Consumption. I have seen every member of a family cut off in this way. On the other hand, where the parents have paid proper attention to the physical training of their children by increasing the capacity of the lungs, I have seen them escape, though having every predisposition to Consumption. Again, if parents have any peculiar irritability of the mucous membrane of the air-passages the same will be found in the children, and this, by increasing their liability to catarrh and bronchitis, may predispose them to Consumption; but predisposition is very different from inheritance. Every person may be said to be predisposed that has a smell shop or an irritable mucous membrane. We may inherit these and other physical peculiarities, but no person sinee the foundation of the world ever yet inherited any disease, unless the parent had that disease at the time of birth.

The second cause, and the one most common in this climate, is disease of the air passages—Catarrh, Sore Throat or Bronchitis. These are generally caused by Colds, but sometimes by dust. All catarrhal affections, whether of the nose, throat or lungs, produce thickening of the mucous membrane, and more or less secretion of mucous. These tend to diminish the size of the tubes through which the air passes to the lungs, and, as a consequence, diminish the quantity of air received at each breath. Often we find in Bronchitis the size of the bronchial tubes diminished one-third and even one-half. When such is the case, the patient is always short breathed. He cannot run up a flight of stairs or a hill as he could when in health, but soon gets out of wind and becomes fatigued. Even where the obstruction to the air tubes is slight and temporary, it produces a feverishness of the system, increased frequency of the pulse, and diminished appetite. When the obstruction is greater, as is the case in Asthma, these symptoms are increased, and the shortness of breath becomes a gasping for air. When a person dies from Croup or Drowning, it is not the disease or the water which kills, but the Carbon of the blood, which poisons and paralyzes the heart and brain. Nothing will remove this Carbon but the Oxygen of the air. The fumes of burning charcoal, when diffused through the air of a room, cause death in the same way as drowning and Croup, by simply preventing the oxygen of the air from reaching the lungs.

Now, since death follows from shutting off the air in from one to two minutes, you can readily understand that this function of the lungs is very necessary to life, and that even the slightest diminution in the quantity or the purity of the air must be followed by great injury to health. The blood always becomes carbonaceous when the quantity of air is diminished, and the quantity of air is always diminished when the air tubes are thickened by catarrhal inflammation or clogged by sticky mucus. Consumption is only the consequence of this carbonaceous impurity of the blood. Tubercles themselves are only deposits of carbon in the tissue of the lungs, and the ulceration and destruction of this important organ results directly from their presence.

MILITARY.

CITY BOUNTY MONEY.

NOTICE TO VOLUNTEERS.—The following are the rules prescribed in relation to the payment of Bounty money to volunteer soldiers, under an ordinance of the Corporation, approved Sept. 4, 1862:

1. The Bounty will be paid only to recruits who enlist on and after THURSDAY, Sept. 4, for three years or the war.

2. Applicants for the Bounty will be required to file in the Comptroller's office an affidavit that they are not deserters from the service of the United States, and that they have not been paid any bounty or premium, by or on account of any other county, city or town, for or in consideration of their enlisting; also a duplicate of their enlistment papers, headed "VOLUNTEER ENLISTMENT"—duly signed by all the signatories thereto, and provided for in the printed blank form to be added.

3. In the case of recruits for Regiments now at the seat of war, the certificate of the State Examining Surgeon will be required to be indorsed on the enlistment paper, in addition to that of the United States Surgeon. They will also be required to exhibit the original "descriptive list," showing when, where and by whom, they were enrolled and mustered into the service, and the name of the regiment, &c., &c. This will be returned after being examined and checked by the Auditor.

4. Volunteers for new regiments will be required to exhibit the "sub muster-in roll," showing when, where and by whom, they were enrolled and mustered, and the name of their regiment, which will be returned after being examined and checked as above.

5. Volunteers applying for bounty money, must be accompanied by an officer of the regiment to which they belong, to identify them and witness their receipt of the money.

6. The hours for paying bounty money will be from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M.

SPINOLA'S EMPIRE BRIGADE.

ATTENTION! ATTENTION! ATTENTION!
No. 81 Nassau-st.
Company D,
HILLHOUSE LIGHT INFANTRY,
Col. P. J. GLASSEN, Commanding.
RECRUITS WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

Patriotic young men of New-York, if you desire to enlist in the service of your country, in this her hour of trial, come forward at once—one and all.

You are now called upon to rally to her support. Do not wait to be drafted, but show to the world that we are not compelled to resort to such an expedient in order to crush this monster rebellion.

To arms, then! and join a command officered by men who have had experience in the field, and who are thoroughly qualified to look after the requirements of their men.

$60 bounty paid after being mustered in.

Clothing of the best quality. Relief tickets furnished to families.

Dead-beats need not apply, as such men deter recruiting.

E. F. DOHERTY, Captain Commanding,
Late First Regiment U. S. Sharpshooters.
First Lieutenant, J. H. GOODELL.
Second Lieutenant, Thos. A. HENRY.

FOURTH REGIMENT EMPIRE BRIGADE.
JAMES C. BURKE, Colonel.

Co. H, (Capt. JOHN D. HEARNE,) requires twenty more young men to complete its number. This being the only truly Irish regiment now organizing in the State, young Irishmen about to enlist had better join it, and serve under the green flag. The regiment is intended to be exclusively Irish.

Recruits enlisting in this company will receive
$100 from the United States,
$50 from the State of New-York,
$25 from the City and County,
$15 one month's pay in advance,
Of which, $90 will be paid down, on passing muster.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

LIGHTHILL'S BOOK ON DEAFNESS.

Third Edition just ready.

A POPULAR TREATISE ON DEAFNESS.

By Dr. E. B. LIGHTHILL, of New-York.

One small 12mo., with Illustrations. Price 75 cents.

The very remarkable sale of this little volume is a sufficient guarantee of its popularity and value. Two editions have been sold within so many months, and a third is just ready.

The author's aim has been to produce a book FOR THE PEOPLE, not for the medical profession, but for afflicted individuals and families, who, wishing information upon the subject, have heretofore been at a loss for any work treating in unprofessional language upon Deafness and its attending evils. This book fills such a vacuum. It is clear and comprehensive.

The New-York Observer says: "There is a large amount of useful information here embodied for the million, to teach them how to guard against deafness, and how to treat it when coming on."

The Boston Commercial Bulletin says: "An excellent and comprehensive little treatise, written in a clear and common-sense style, easily understood."

The work should find its way into the hands of every individual suffering with deafness, or any accompanying affliction. Its value will be at once appreciated.

 Sold by booksellers everywhere, and it will be sent by mail free, on receipt of price, 75 cents, by

ALDRICH'S NEW BOOK.

OUT OF HIS HEAD.

A Romance. By T. B. ALDRICH,
Author of "Babie Bell," and other poems.
Paper covers, price 50 cents. Cloth bound

PERSONAL.

— Col. Gill, of the Twenty-ninth Wisconsin, got home yesterday, very weak indeed. He, in a very general recruiting commission from the Governor, and was visiting different towns, doing recruiting war speeches. During one of these he was taken sick, and was in the parlors, when he fell, in substance, that it was a very fine thing, no doubt, for him to urge others to enlist, when he had a commission, and expected to get large pay and have comfortable time himself. Mr. Gill at once drew his commission, and, in a few minutes, was down and declaring he was ready to go as a private, sworn in for three years or a common soldier, and then went on with his address. His example was contagious, and between forty and fifty came forward and enlisted at once. Subsequently the company elected him captain, and next, with the Governor's consent, Colonel Cameron, recommended him for colonel of a regiment. Thus, in the course of two or three weeks, Col. Gill has risen from a private in the ranks to the position of Colonel.

— Maj.-Gen. J. A. McClernand had a reception at Springfield, Ill., on Aug. 21, which was very enthusiastic and cordial. He made a stirring and encouraging war speech.

PROPOSALS FOR $250,000 OF THE CROTON WATER STOCK OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK.—Sealed proposals will be received at the Comptroller's office, until THURSDAY, Sept. 25, 1862, at two o'clock, P. M., when the same will be publicly opened for the sale of fifty years (with the privilege of two hundred and fifty years) of the Croton water stock of the City of New-York, authorized by Chapter 372 of the laws of 1861, and by ordinance of the Common Council, approved by the Mayor Oct. 4, 1861, for increasing the supply of Croton water, &c.
Said stock will bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable quarter-yearly, and the principal will be redeemed Nov. 1, 1902.
The proposals will state the amount of stock desired, and the price per one hundred dollars thereof; and the persons whose proposals will be required to deposit with the Chamberlain of the City, within ten days after the opening of the bids, the sum awarded to them respectively.
On presenting to the Comptroller the receipts of the Chamberlain for such deposits, the parties will be entitled to receive certificates for equal amounts of the par value of the stock, bearing interest from the date of payments.
Bids or proposals should be sealed and indorsed "Proposals for Croton Water Stock of the City of New-York," and the same inclosed in a second envelope, addressed to the Comptroller.
The right is reserved to reject any or all of the bids, if deemed necessary, to protect or promote the interests of the City.
ROBERT T. HAWS, Comptroller.
CITY OF NEW-YORK, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, Aug. 28, 1862.

NOTICE.—CHICAGO, ALTON AND ST. LOUIS RAILROAD, (LATE CHICAGO AND MISSISSIPPI RAILROAD.)—Holders of the First and Second Mortgage Bonds, and all the holders of the Receiver's certificates of indebtedness upon the above named Railroad, are hereby required, pursuant to a resolution adopted at the Bondholders' meeting of 8th of July, 1862, to deposit their above-named documents with L. H. MEYER, Chairman of the Committee, on the 1st day of September, 1862, at No. 25 William-st., New-York.
Attention is called to the third resolution, adopted at the bondholders' meeting of 23d of July, 1862, according to which parties not complying are subject to be remitted to their rights in their distributive share of the proceeds of sale, and all other and further rights which they may have, or may be entitled to, in consequence.
Those who have not yet subscribed to the agreement, and have not paid their share of advances to the Receiver, can, in accordance with the last resolution, adopted at Bondholders' meeting of 8th of July, 1862, now become parties to said agreement by subscribing and paying into the office of L. H. JESSUP & CO., No. 44 Exchange-place, before the 5th day of September, 1862.
L. H. MEYER, Chairman of Trustees.

NOTICE.—TO THE BONDHOLDERS OF THE MILWAUKEE AND PRAIRIE DU CHIEN RAILWAY COMPANY.—The Trustees under the provisions of the mortgage respecting a Sinking Fund, have designated the following bonds for payment at par and interest, viz.: No. 16, 169, 170, 171, 225, 226, 227, 1974, 1977, 2027, 2128, 2129, 2130, 2131, 2132, 2133, 2134, 2135, 2136, 2137. The above named bonds will cease to bear interest after Jan. 1, 1863. The holders can receive the amount due immediately upon presentation to us at the office of W. HERNIA OR RUPTURE RADICALLY CURED!! WHITE'S PATENT LEVER TRUSS cures this dreadful disease. New principle—light, easy and clean. Pamphlets free. GREGORY & CO., No. 25 Bond-st.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by Dr. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospital of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. By his special experience in this much-neglected branch of medical science he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Gleet or Gonorrhœa of long standing, where all internal remedies have failed, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment otherwise, may rely on a permanent cure, by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., the only place.

SURE CURE.—DR. POWERS' SUCCESSFULLY consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st. He gives advice free, and guarantees an immediate cure or no pay. Glorious triumph of medicine. Dr. POWERS' sure specific remedies for syphilitic, mercurial and all other delicate diseases; for certainty unapproached, and for the entire restoration of the sexual system, when ruined by youthful indiscretion; try these, and be convinced. Dr. POWERS' Essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the wasted, nervous invalid. Office No. 12 Laight-st. Dr. POWERS' French Preventive, the greatest invention of the age. Those who have used them are never without them. Price, $4 per dozen; mailed free on receipt of the price. Address Dr. POWERS, No. 12 Laight-st.

DR. COBBETT, MEMBER OF THE N. Y. University, (Medical College,) and Royal College of Surgeons, London, has removed from No. 19 Duane-st. to his present very convenient suite of offices at No. 34 Centre-st., between Chambers and Reade sts., with a private entrance at No. 5 City Hall-place, where he can be consulted with the most honorable confidence on all diseases affecting the urinary organs; thirty years in his present specialty, (three of which have been at the Hospitals of this City,) enable him to guarantee a cure in every case undertaken, or make no charge. Strictures of the urethra, impotency, seminal weakness, &c., treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—As a proof of Dr. C.'s qualifications, he would call special attention to his Diplomas, which can be seen in his office.

IMPORTANT TO THE MARRIED AND THOSE ABOUT TO BE MARRIED.—Dr. A. M. MACKIE, Professor of Diseases of Women, has just published the 160th edition of the Prize Essay, entitled "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," strictly intended for those whose health or circumstances permit a too rapid increase of family. Price $1. Sold at his office, No. 129 Liberty-st., New-York; or sent by mail, free of postage, to any part of the United States and Canada, by inclosing $1, and addressing Box No. 4,324 New-York City. For sale by H. RICHARDSON, at No. 1 Vesey-st., (Astor House,) and No. 19 Ann-st.; FEDERHEN & CO., 21 Court-st., Boston.

DR. COOPER, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY BE confidently consulted on all diseases of a private nature. A practice of 20 years, devoted to the treatment and cure of Syphilitic, Mercurial, and diseases of a delicate nature, enables Dr. C. to make speedy and permanent cures, no matter of how long standing the case may be. Strictures of the urethra and seminal weakness, brought on by a secret habit, effectually cured. The victims of misplaced confidence, who have been misled by quack advertisements, can call on Dr. C. with the certainty of being radically cured. N. B.—Dr. C. is a graduated physician and surgeon, and a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New-York. Office hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL VIEW OF MARRIAGE—Containing nearly 300 pages, and 130 fine plates and engravings of the anatomy of the sexual organs in a state of health and disease; with a treatise on self-abuse, its deplorable consequences upon the mind and body; with the author's plan of treatment—the only rational and successful mode of cure, as shown by the report of cases treated. A truthful adviser to the married and those contemplating marriage, who entertain doubts of their physical condition. Sent free of postage to any address on receipt of 25 cents, in specie or postage stamps. Address Dr. LA CROIX, No. 31 Maiden-lane, Albany, N. Y.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.—BY O. D. HAMMOND, M. D., formerly Professor of Special Anatomy, &c., in the Syracuse Medical College, New-York. Revised Edition. Price $1, mailed. Those who have been disappointed in the use of so-called "Specific" remedies for the Cure of Seminal Weakness, Impotency, and kindred complaints, would do well to procure a copy of this Book, which treats upon these and other diseases, viz. 1 to 10, 100 to 109, 112, 113, 114, 115, and 204 to 209. To be had of E. WARNER, No. 1 Vesey-st., N. Y. Author's address, No. 21 East 20th-st., (late of No. 656 Broadway.)

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. The French preventive $4 per dozen. No. 3 Division-st., New-York, the only place. You who have contracted this foul and body-destroying vice, Secret Habits, Dr. HUNTER'S Red Drop cures the worst cases. Price $1, with a book.

EDWARD H. DIXON, M. D., EDITOR OF the Scalpel, and Operating and Consulting Surgeon, No. 431 Grand-st. Office consultations on the more obscure diseases of the pelvic viscera. Rupture, piles, varicocele, and fistula, radically cured without the knife or ligature. Office hours from 8 to 9, 1 to 3, and 7 to 9 evenings. Consultation fee $3.

DR. JOHNSON, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY be consulted with confidence on private diseases. Thirty years in one specialty enables him to guarantee speedy and permanent cures. N. B.—Those who may have been misled by quack advertisements, nostrums, &c., can call on Dr. J. with the certainty of receiving honorable treatment.

FOUND AT LAST.—THE ONLY SAFE, CERtain and sure remedy for either single or married ladies in regulating and removing all obstructions. Dr. POWERS' French Periodical Drops. SOMETHING FOR LADIES.—DR. COX'S Japan Secret, the great periodical remedy for the immediate removal of monthly obstructions. Office No. 32 Leroy-st., near Bleecker. Ladies can consult Dr. COX confidentially. Hours from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

SULPHUR AND VAPOR BATHS—ESTABLISHED IN 1830.—The only genuine baths in the United States, at No. 1 Carroll-place, bleecker-st., corner of Laurens, for cure of rheumatism, mercurial affections, &c. Given daily by Dr. A. L. TIMOLAT & CO.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. WARD'S Great Benefactor. The great periodical remedy, infallible for the immediate removal of monthly obstructions. Office, No. 12 Laight-st., near Canal, where Dr. WARD can be consulted confidentially, day or evening.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER, long, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated and cured fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in two weeks in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb, unless his remedy is used. This is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become well known, that eclectic men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some pitiful patient, who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it; and when they find their lies are all in vain, they swallow, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 18 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

PROCLAMATION.
MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, Sept. 3, 1862.
Pursuant to an ordinance of the Corporation of this City, approved by me, I hereby, on behalf of the Corporation, offer to all able-bodied persons of the age prescribed by law who shall, within twenty days after the date hereof, and before a draft shall be made, "enlist in any one of the regiments now at the seat of war or organizing for the war, the sum of FIFTY DOLLARS each, in addition to all other bounties therefore offered or agreed to be paid to volunteer soldiers for the present war by the State of New-York or the United States, the same to be paid to said persons respectively, or to their duly authorized representatives, immediately after their compliance with the requirement of the authorities of this State for the payment of the State bounty, in the case of recruits for regiments already in the field, as prescribed by the third subdivision of paragraph IV. of General Orders No. 59 from the office of the Adjutant-General of the State, and their acceptance and actual muster into service."
The said payment shall be made at the office of the Comptroller of the City of New-York, "upon the appearance of such volunteers personally, or by their duly authorized representatives, and filing with him satisfactory evidence of their having severally enlisted and been accepted and mustered into the service of the United States, and also stating the names of the company and regiment to which they respectively belong."
It will be noticed that the bounty hereby offered is only to those who shall volunteer after the issue of this Proclamation. GEORGE OPDYKE, Mayor.

BELLEVUE HOSPITAL MEDICAL COLLEGE.
SESSION FOR 1862-'3.
The preliminary term in this institution will commence on WEDNESDAY, Sept. 17, 1862, and continue to the beginning of the regular term, viz., 11 weeks.
In addition to daily instruction in the Bellevue and Blackwell's Island Hospitals during the preliminary term, three lectures will be given daily by members of the Faculty. The regular term will commence on WEDNESDAY, Oct. 15, 1862, and end early in March, 1863. During the whole of the session the student will have the opportunity of attending at least two clinical lectures daily; the didactic lectures are so arranged as not to interfere with attendance at the Hospital. Clinical and demonstrative teaching constituting the great feature of this College, the arrangements are such as to render the immense resources of the Hospitals available to the student to the fullest extent. All the lectures are given either in the Hospitals, or in the College building, situated within the Bellevue Hospital grounds.
The Departments and Faculty of this College are constituted as follows:

The steamship City of New-York, from Liverpool on the 30th ult. Queenstown on the 31st of August, passed this point en route for New-York, at 7 o'clock this morning. She was boarded by the cove yacht and a category of her news obtained. Her dates are three days later than those per the Asia.

The City of New-York has 120 cabin and 250 steerage passengers. She has experienced strong westerly gales through the passage.

[FROM U. S. FRIGATE TUSCARORA.

The United States Frigate Tuscarora put into Plymouth on the 2d of August, and was ordered to leave in twenty-four hours. She sought permission to repaire and repair her damages, she being reported leaky. The authorities referred her Captain to the Admiral, but it is said that the Captain declined to make any application in that quarter. She was allowed to remain while one of her officers went to London, but she was ordered to leave on his return, without repairs and without coal.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The English journals have very little to say on American affairs.

The London Times sarcastically refers Gen. McClellan to his criticism on the Allies on the conduct of the war in the Crimea, and asks how his own proceedings will stand the test of these criticisms.

It is stated that a MS. at Gallopyes Court-House as a final demonstration for Gen. Pope.

The London Morning Herald denounces the summary treatment of the laws of nations by the United States Navy, and complains of Earl Russell's apathy.

FRANCE.

The Moniteur, in a paragraph, said to be from the highest hand, relative to Rome, says:

"In view of the insolent threats and possible complicity of the demagogic insurrection, it is the duty of the French Government, and its military force is more than ever, to defend the Holy Father. The world must be well aware that France does not abandon those to whom, when in danger, she extends her protection."

It is reported that preparations, both naval and military, are being made by France in view of Italian complications.

The Indian Troubles in Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, MINN., Friday, Sept. 5.

The Indians attacked Forest City on the 3d, and were repulsed. Capt. SPRAGUE writes to the Adjutant-General from Hutchinson, on the 3d, that he was attacked by one hundred and fifty Indians, a part wounded. The fight lasted two hours and a half, when the Indians gave way. Our loss was three killed and fifteen wounded. Capt. SPRAGUE also states that the Indians had excellent guns, were dressed partly in citizens' dress, and rode horses. He thinks the difficulty in the vicinity will be ended.

PREPARATIONS IN CINCINNATI.

Volunteers Pouring into the City—Gunboats Patrolling the Ohio—No News from Kentucky, &c.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 5.

Business is still suspended. Volunteers and armed bodies of men continue to pour into the city by thousands. The city is quiet, and there is no excitement beyond the enthusiasm manifested over their arrivals. Regiments and companies, as they arrive, are bountifully supplied with provisions in Fifth-street Market-space. A bridge of boats is being built across the river at the foot of Walnut-street. It will be completed to-night.

The order suppressing the Evening Times was revoked this morning. The paper appears this afternoon.

Gunboats are constantly patrolling the river, for miles above and below.

Reports from Kentucky are conflicting. Nothing is known of the whereabouts of the rebels since their arrival at Paris.

An order was issued this morning, compelling citizens to be in their houses by 9 P. M.

PENNSYLVANIA ORGANIZING.

Military Preparations at Harrisburgh and Elsewhere—Citizens Drilling, &c.

HARRISBURGH, Friday, Sept. 5.

All places of business were closed at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the citizens forming into companies and drilling.

At a meeting in Capitol Grounds, this afternoon, Parson BROWNLOW stated that he believed it was the intention of the rebels to cross the Potomac in strong force, and strike for Harrisburgh, and ultimately for Philadelphia.

Twenty-two thousand stand of arms are ready for distribution. Over 100 recruits for the old regiments are sent hence every day.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, Sept. 5.

Mayor HENRY recommends the citizens to meet at the various Precinct-houses, on Monday afternoon, to form military organizations to repel invasion.

THE WAR IN KENTUCKY.

Rumored Attack on the National Forces at Shelbyville—Prominent Secessionists Arrested in Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Thursday, Sept. 4.

The city was thrown into considerable excitement this afternoon by rumors that the Union forces under Gen. GILBERT were attacked at noon to-day by the rebels near Shelbyville, about thirty miles east of Louisville.

The result was unknown.

Large National reinforcements are rapidly approaching Gen. GILBERT.

Several arrests of prominent Secessionists were made here to-day. They, together with all the political prisoners hitherto confined here, were sent north of the Ohio River to-day.

THE REBELS IN WESTERN VIRGINIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, Sep. 5.

The Wheeling Intelligencer of yesterday learns that Col. RAYMOND, of the Eleventh Virginia Infantry, has surrendered Spencer to the rebels. No particulars.

Col. MULLIGAN has been unable to find the rebels on the line of Northwestern Virginia.

THE GUERRILLAS IN TENNESSEE.

MEMPHIS, Wednesday, Sept. 3.

A fight is reported to have taken place at Mid-dletorgh, seven miles from Bolivar, Sunday afternoon, lasting several hours. The town was taken by the rebels. The National loss was 27 killed and 7 taken prisoners. The rebel loss was 4 killed and 8 wounded. Among the rebels killed is Capt. SCOTTSON, of St. Louis.

The steamer [illegible] was fired into on her last passage up from Helena, by guerrillas from the foot of Black Island, killing one and wounding two. The military landed, and burned the houses in the vicinity, and laid the plantations waste. Fifteen prisoners were taken. The negroes on the plantations were also brought away.

AFFAIRS AT THE REBEL CAPITAL.

THE REBEL CONGRESS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

SATURDAY, Aug. 30, 1862.

The House met at 12 o'clock, and was opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. SELLEN.

The journal of yesterday was read.

Mr. BOULDIN presented a memorial on the subject of horses lost in the public service, which was referred to the Military Committee without reading.

Mr. RUSSELL, of Virginia, presented a resolution that the President be requested to communicate to the House the cartel recently agreed upon for a general exchange of prisoners with the enemy, and to inform this House whether the enemy is known to have violated the same in any way, and particularly by administering oaths of allegiance to prisoners in their custody and retaining them in the United States. The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. RUSSELL, also, offered a resolution that the Committee on Judiciary inquire and report whether the conduct of the Federal Government absolves the Government from the obligation to observe the established usages of international warfare in our relations with the enemy, except so far as, in particular cases, the Government may deem best to observe them voluntarily.

This last resolution elicited considerable discussion, which was participated in by Messrs. RUSSELL, MOORE, LYONS, and others; after which,

Mr. MILES, of S. C., offered a resolution that the resolution now before the House, and all bills and resolutions relating to the subject of retaliation, in the hands of the Military Committee, be withdrawn from that committee and referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. KENAN, of Ga., moved to lay the resolution of Mr. RUSSELL on the table; but the motion did not prevail.

Mr. CHILTON, of Alabama, submitted the following as a substitute for the resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary inquire and report whether any and what legislation is necessary on the part of Congress to enable our Government to prevent, by retaliatory measures consistent with the law of nations and the usages of civilized warfare, the atrocious and brutal conduct perpetrated by the enemy, in violation of the laws of war, upon the property and persons of the citizens and soldiers of this Confederacy.

The question recurred upon the resolution of Mr. MILES, which was agreed to, and both the resolutions of Mr. RUSSELL and Mr. CHILTON were referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. RUSSELL, of Virginia, introduced a bill to protect persons who resist the efforts of the invading enemy to subjugate these States, and to exterminate the loyal people thereof. Referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

A PROCLAMATION BY GOV. LETCHER.

Gov. LETCHER has issued a proclamation calling out the militia between the ages of 18 and 45 in certain counties of the State. He says:

"Surely it is not necessary to appeal to the people of these counties to rally to the standard raised by their own State for their own defence. Surely Virginians will prefer a draft made under the Constitution and laws of Virginia to one made by that detestable tyranny now characterizing the Government of the United States. Our object is to expel from our soil its invaders, who are waging against us a warfare of destruction, of confiscation, and of robbery, with a bitterness and fury rendered desperate by defeat and by the enormous expenditure which flows from their attempt at our subjugation.

"It is our duty to effect our purpose in the shortest possible time. The enemy is raising an immense force to overwhelm us if possible. We must meet him with adequate resistance. While the Confederate Government is gathering its energy for the general defence, it becomes Virginia not only to contribute her quota for that object, but to put forth her special exertion to free her population and their homes from the desecration of an unscrupulous foe.

"I, therefore, once more call on the people promptly to obey the orders which have been issued. I appeal to the officers of the militia in the counties mentioned to exert their energies in summoning and forwarding the detachments under their command without loss of time, that the General selected by the Legislature may be afforded an opportunity speedily to take the field, and in strike the enemy with spirit and effective blows.

"I manifestly call upon all citizens of the State, civil and military, to know the country and to expel from the ranks of these traitors, and to constitute whatever may be proper to render them effective.

"I appeal to those in Western Virginia, and particularly in the Northwest, who are liable to draft under the Lincoln Government, to come out from among the common enemy, and unite themselves, as becomes true sons of Virginia, to the force here called for; under the firm hope and belief that by doing so they will once more restore themselves and their portion to that united Virginia, which it has been the pride and glory of our whole people to uphold and defend.

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTEENTH NEW-YORK REGIMENT.

BUFFALO, Friday, Sept. 5.

The One Hundred and Sixteenth Regiment, Col. CHARLES, left the city, to-day, for the seat of war. A splendid regiment flag was presented to them on behalf of a number of citizens.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-EIGHTH REGIMENT.

HUDSON, Friday, Sept. 5.

The One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Regiment, Col. COWLES, leaves in steamer Oregon, at 5 P. M., for New-York, en route to the seat of war.

ARMY AND NAVY INTELLIGENCE.

The rest of the Second Battalion of the Twelfth Infantry, U. S. A., has left Fort Hamilton for the seat of war. The Third Battalion is now being organized, under the superintendence of Major BAGLEY, and recruits are coming in pretty rapidly from the Western States. Major CLINTON and Adjutant MACKRACK, of the First Battalion, are still at the Fort—the former wounded and the latter sick. The Twelfth is one of the eleven new regiments ordered, the raising of which was authorized by Congress in 1861. We are not permitted to give the destination of the above troops.

The United States sloop-of-war Adirondack, at the time of her loss, was on her way to the National cruisers off NASSAU, for the purpose of giving them information of a valuable character, and also with a view to lend a helping hand in capturing the Anglo-Confederate pirate Oreto, under command of the notorious Capt. SEMMES. She was under orders from the Navy Department, and touched at this point on the 17th inst. She had previously been on a similar errand, returning to Fortress Monroe on the 4th of August; but at that time the Oreto had been seized and bonded by the English authorities. Since then the privateer has been again transferred to the rebels, and with her audacious commander, her heavy armament and her superior sailing qualities, is again upon the open sea.

As an offset to the statement that no New-England whalemen enter the navy, we publish the following of the number enlisted at the port of New-Bedford alone, from May 4, 1861, to the 4th day of September, 1862: Seamen, 641; ordinary seamen, 1,065 (among these 85 have shipped for the Sabine;) landsmen, 558; boys, 16; apprentices, 1; total, 2,271. It may be added that recruiting is equally brisk elsewhere at present. No difficulty is experienced at all in providing crews for the different vessels preparing for sea. There are now, over 20,000 seamen in the navy. Affairs at the Washington Navy-yard are very brisk. There are over 1,000 men employed, entirely in the fabrication of ordnance. On Thursday the Teaser (captured from the rebels) went on a trial trip to Alexandria, taking down Capt. HARWOOD, commandant of the yard, and a few invited friends. The trial was highly satisfactory, she attaining a speed of about fifteen knots an hour with the tide, and twelve knots against the tide. The Chippewa, which has been on the ways for some weeks past, was got off yesterday afternoon, and she was moored to the wharf, where her repairs will be completed with all possible dispatch.

A draft of 150 sailors from New-York for the gunboats in the Potomac, arrived at the yard on Thursday evening, and another detachment got there last night.

Orders have been received from Washington to expedite in every possible way the work upon the ironclad vessels now building at various places on the North, so that they may be ready for service at an early day. In obedience to this order, Mr. HARMONY LEARNS, of South Boston, and the other contractors elsewhere who are building the vessels on the Monitor plan, have hundreds of men employed, and expects to have his portion of the work completed in the course of two or three weeks.

ONE DAY LATER FROM NEW-ORLEANS.

Arrival of the Transport Fulton.

The United States transport Fulton, Capt. WORTON, Commander, from New-Orleans, Aug. 28, to D. D. TOMPKINS, Acting Quartermaster, cleared with stock and disembarked soldiers from the Department of the Gulf, arrived Thursday. The Fulton has on board the name of WASHINGTON, taken from Baton Rouge, also six cases containing the remains of Capt. FESSENDEN, Dr. VAN DEUSEN, Lieut. SIMSON, Lieut. CHILDS, 8th Vt. Vols.; Lieut. RAND, 8th Vt. Vols. Died and buried at sea, privates George F. Jordan, Co. E, 13th Me.; James Kimball, Co. A, 8th Vt.; Daniel E. Hunewell, Co. I, 13th Me.; Francis Hunter, Co. D, 13th Me. The body of Lieut. Bryant Ind. Vols., was buried at sea.

The Fulton brings a cargo of 142 hhds. N. O. sugar, and 100 half boxes tobacco.

A DEMONSTRATION UPON BATON ROUGE.

From the New-Orleans Delta, Aug. 23.

On Wednesday morning the Secessionists paid another visit to the army at Baton Rouge. Gen. PARKE, with the heroes of the battle of the 5th, stood ready to greet them; but the gunboats in the river opened on the rebels, and they skedaddled back in the direction of their camp.

GEN. BRECKENRIDGE is encamped at Comite River; but he seems to be without purpose. Our forces have been waiting for him patiently for three weeks, but the Commanding General is unwilling to remove from his "water."

This affair having demonstrated that Baton Rouge can be held by the navy, our troops have been temporarily withdrawn, and we believe are to be, forthwith, put into a new field of operations.

POWERS' STATUE OF WASHINGTON.

From the New-Orleans Delta, Aug. 23.

The celebrated statue of WASHINGTON has been removed from Baton Rouge to New-Orleans. This was done by order of MAJ.-GEN. BUTLER, who was unwilling to suffer the marble image of the Father of his Country to remain among savage guerrillas and thieving rebels. We have no knowledge of what disposition will be finally made of it; but if we could obtain the ear of Gen. BUTLER, we should not hesitate to suggest that it be offered to the City of New-York, as a gift for the adornment of Central Park. It is of possible use to Secessionists.

GEN. BIRGE.

HEADQUARTERS THIRD BRIGADE,
DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF,
CUSTOM-HOUSE, NEW-ORLEANS, AUG. 23, 1862.

GENERAL ORDER No 1.—By virtue of General Order, No. 68, Headquarters Department of the Gulf, New-Orleans, Aug. 21, 1862, I hereby assume command of the Third Brigade, Department of the Gulf, comprising all the United States troops now on duty in this city and Algiers.

Commanders of regiments and detached companies will report for orders at Brigade Headquarters, corner of Canal and Old Levee streets, New Customhouse.

HENRY W. BIRGE,
Colonel and Acting Brigadier-General.

The New-Jersey Democratic Convention.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

TRENTON, Thursday, Sept. 4.

The afternoon session was densely crowded, and there was no little excitement. Hon. JAMES R. WORTENDYKE, of Hudson, was appointed President of the Convention. A Vice-President from each county, and a Secretary from each district completed the permanent organization. Nominations were then made for Governor. The following were candidates on the first ballot: MOSES BIGELOW, PETER D. VROOM, Joel Parker, Charles Skelton, Theodore Runyon, J. R. Wortendyke, Alexander Wurts, R. M. Smith, Benjamin Williamson, Joseph M. Taylor and Fulmeis R. Kennedy. After the first ballot several names were withdrawn. The following ballotings were then had:

FIRST BALLOT.

Parker	91	Bigelow	66
Skelton	71	Runyon	50
Wurts	63	Williamson	50
Kennedy	29	Smith	39

SECOND BALLOT.

Parker	142	Bigelow	121
Skelton	53	Runyon	35
Wurts	62	Williamson	36
Kennedy	29	Smith	35

THIRD BALLOT.

Parker	247	Bigelow	156
Skelton	66

FOURTH BALLOT.

Parker	302	Bigelow	127
Skelton	29

Mr. PARKER having received a majority of all the votes on ballot, his nomination was made unanimous. A Committee of Four was appointed to inform the candidate of his nomination. The resolutions were then read.

The first deplores the demoralizing tendency of the higher law teachings of the Republican Party, impelling the Convention to reiterate its faith in the doctrine that constitutional law is the only basis of executive action in peace or war; the second extends to the National Administration the most cordial support for the speedy suppression of the rebellion by all Constitutional measures; third, asserting that the people have reserved to themselves all the power not delegated to the Government; therefore, all assumptions of power by the Administration, whether in the suppression of the habeas corpus, arrest and imprisonment without due course of law or restriction of the freedom of speech and the Press are dangerous infringements of the Constitutional rights of the people only to be patiently borne by the hopeless serfs of an irresistable despotism; the fourth, while protesting against extravagance, infamous peculation and political outrage, they feel it a sacred duty to advocate every Constitutional means to suppress the rebellion and vindicate the authority of the Constitution as it is, and the restoration of the Union as it was; the fifth abhors the idea that as an object of the present war, any purpose of the emancipation of the slaves shall thereby be promoted or regarded; the sixth applauds the volunteers and extends sympathy to the bereaved; the seventh pledges support support to the candidates; the eighth expresses regret at the death of Gen. TAYLOR, KEARNEY and others.

Speeches were made by Mr. PARKER, the nominee, Judge NOAR and J. PIERREPONT, after which the Convention adjourned, with nine cheers for PARKER.

The Wisconsin Democratic Convention.

MILWAUKEE, Thursday, Sept. 4.

The State Democratic Convention met here yesterday, and declared unanimously to sustain the President in all strictly constitutional duties, denying the right of the people to refuse their support during the pending crisis, and denying his right to infringe upon the liberties of the people, guaranteed by the fundamental law of the land. About 1,000 persons were said to be in attendance.

News by the Santa Fe Mail.

KANSAS CITY, Friday, Sept. 5.

The Santa Fé Mail, with dates to the 25th ult., arrived here last evening, making the trip in ten days. Quite a large number of Indians were seen on the route, but all were peaceable.

The Santa Fé Gazette of the 23d furnishes the following:

Great discontent exists among the population of Colorado Territory.

There has not been any demoralization yet; but Gen. CARNY has made such a disposition of his troops as will effectually and speedily suppress any attempt of insubordination.

Two batteries of heavy artillery arrived at Fort Union last week for the Military Department.

Mr. MAXWELL has been appointed Indian Agent under the new provision for New-Mexico.

An attempt was made to fire Independence, Missouri, last night, but the flames were extinguished.

Resignation of James F. Simmons as United States Senator from Rhode Island.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Friday, Sept. 5.

Hon. JAMES F. SIMMONS resigned his seat in the United States Senate this morning, and the General Assembly elected Lieut.-Gov. SAMUEL GERRY ARNOLD to fill his place for the remainder of the term, which expires on the 4th of March next. Mr. ARNOLD received 71 out of the 81 votes cast.

Gen. Curtis Not Superceded in his Command in Arkansas.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, Sept. 5.

The Democrat of this morning says: The report that Gen. CURTIS has been superseded as Commander of the Army of the Southwest, except for a short time at his own request, to recover his health, is incorrect. We have authority for stating that he has never been reprimanded by the Government, and are authorized to make this statement.

The Remains of Gen. Philip Kearney.

NEWARK, N. J., Friday, Sept. 5.

The remains of the lamented Gen. PHILIP KEARNEY are now lying in state at his residence in East Newark, where they can be viewed, between the hours of 10 and 4 o'clock to-day, (Friday.)

Disaster on Lake Ontario.

ST. CATHARINES, C. W., Thursday, Sept. 4.

The propeller Vermont, of the Northern Transportation Company's Line, is supposed to have foundered in the storm of Monday night, below Fort Maguire, and all on board, it is feared, have been lost. There were seven passengers, and a crew of twelve or fifteen men. The vessel had a heavy cargo.

Destructive Fire in Twenty-seventh-street.

ESTIMATED LOSS OVER $70,000.

About 11 o'clock last night a very destructive fire broke out in the carpenter shop and planing mill of G. S. MYER, in West Twenty-seventh, near Seventh-avenue, which resulted in the entire destruction of the building, and also several others adjoining. Mr. MYER's building was of brick, 4 stories high, and cost the sum of $22,000 to construct it. In addition to this he has lost a large quantity of stock, to what amount, at this late hour, it is impossible to say. He is insured for $12,000 in the Park, Pacific, St. Mark's, Merchants' and Williamsburgh City Insurance Companies. Geo. Low, toy maker, occupied the same premises. His loss is about $1,500. Mr. DOUGHERTY, a glass-cutter, lost about $1,000 worth of stock, and JOHN SHAVER, turner, $500. The most of the latter is insured.

The fire extended to the six-story brick building owned by E. CRAWFORD, and at 1 o'clock this morning had not been subdued.

Mr. ARNOLD, feed merchant, occupied all the lower portion of this building. His loss, it is feared, will be very extensive. Whether he is insured or not could not be ascertained.

The upper part of ARNOLD's premises, No. 100 Twenty-seventh-street, were occupied by O. H. BOSS, hoop-skirt manufacturer. His loss is supposed to be very heavy on his stock—said to be insured.

PETER MASTERSON, Foreman of Engine Company No. 33, was seriously injured by the falling of a wall. Capt. BRESNAN, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, with a platoon of men, was early on the ground, and rendered most efficient service.

KNOX'S HATS AND HARD KNOCKS.—Both are in fashion at the present time; but the first are always in request among the bon ton, and are capable of great endurance, whether worn in peace or war. It is whispered that a smart recruiting officer, finding enlistments slow, filled up his company in two days by adding a P. S. to his list of bounties, importing that every recruit should receive a first quality hat of KNOX's make at the end of his term. KNOX has his hat-store at No. 212 Broadway, northeast corner of Fulton-street.

Sailed.

U. S. steam transports G. O. Collins, for Newbern, N. C., and Hilton Head, with troops; Virginia, for Fortress Monroe and Washington, D. C.; Roanoke, for Crescent City, for New-Orleans; Zara, (Br.,) for Matamoras.

Miscellaneous.

NOTE.—The reason the captains of the barks E. F. Chase and brig Frontier Hobbs made no mention of the report of the rebel steamer being at Matamoras when they sailed, is, they were detained by the Quarantine Officer until after they had forwarded their dispatches to Washington.

The steam transport Virginia, at Pier No. 4, North River, will sail this afternoon for Fortress Monroe and Washington. She has a cargo of subsistence stores and ordnance, also 60 deserters from various regiments now in the field.

The brig Frontier Hobbs, from Matamoras, has come up to the Upper Quarantine.

The schr. Ella, from Havana, has been sent to the Lower Quarantine.

The brig Catharine, from Havana, has come up to the Upper Quarantine to discharge cargo.

RETURNED.—Steamship Marion, Phillips, hence Sept. 3, for New-Orleans, returned, in consequence of a slight accident to her machinery.

RETURNED.—The steam transport Albany, hence for Newbern, N. C., when off the Hook, broke her piston-rod, and returned last evening for repairs.

RAILTOWN, Sept. 4.—The steamer Relief, from Boston, bound to New-Orleans, with a cargo of sutlers goods, &c., has arrived here in distress, leaking, &c.

HOLMES' HOLE, Sept. 2.—The brig Orizimbo, of Boston, from Lingan, C. B., with coal for Manhattan Gas Co., of New-York, arrived here yesterday, with bow badly stove, bowsprit gone, loss of anchor and leaking some, having been in collision with steamer Norman, of Boston, on morning of 1st inst., in Vineyard Sound. Will have to discharge for repairs.—(Both by letters to Ellwood Walter, Secretary Board of Underwriters.)

Spoken, &c.
